Nixon Calls Current Welfare System Monumental Failure

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — President Nixon said today the United States cannot tolerate a welfare system "under which working people can be made to feel like fools by those who will not work."

"It is incredible that we have allowed a system of laws under which one person can be penalized for doing an honest day's work and another person can be rewarded for doing nothing," Nixon said in a speech prepared for the Republican Governors Conference.

The President denounced the current welfare system as "a monumental failure," and urged support for his own family assistance proposal, before Congress again after failing to win passage last year. Nixon said under the current system "the person on welfare can often have a higher income than his neighbor who holds a lowpaying job.

"Tragically, these situations often exist in the same neighborhood, side by side in the same apartment houses—and the effect is corrosive," Nixon said. "It creates bitterness on the part of the worker. In the end, I suspect, it causes resignation—and we end up with another person on welfare ....

"The fact is that the welfare establishment and system in the United States is a monumental failure. It makes the taxpayer furious. It makes the welfare recipient bitter, and it inflicts the distillation of all this anger and bitterness to the children who will inherit this land. It is a disgrace to the American spirit."

Nixon said he does not think any job is menial if it puts bread on the table, "provides for your children and lets you look every one else in the eye.

He said scrubbing floors or emptying bedpans is not enjoyable work but there is as much dignity in it as in any job to be done in this country "including my own."

Nixon chose for his hard-sell bid for welfare reform an audience of GOP governors beset by rising state welfare costs.

He singled out for praise the state level efforts of Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, who has been critical of the administration's family assistance plan, and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

He said he wanted to commend them especially for "biting a bullet the entire country is going to have to bite if we are going to bring the financial—and worse, the human— costs of the present welfare system under control.

"I do not think we can tolerate a system under which working people can be made to feel like fools by those who will not work," Nixon said. "To the contrary, I think those who refuse to register for work and accept work or training should be ineligible for welfare payments, and we have written such a stipulation into our welfare reform proposal.

The President's plan being considered by the House Ways and Means Committee calls for a $1,600 minimum yearly income come for a family of four plus food stamps.

Earth Week Activities Take Various Forms

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Man, the endangered species, stands alone today in the primate building of the Atlanta, Ga., zoo. He is surrounded by garbage.

In New York, workers spilled out of skyscrapers to discover 15 blocks of normally congested Madison Avenue devoid of autos as scientists measured the level of atmospheric contaminants.

Both are Earth Week demonstrations designed to point at the many ways in which man poisons his own environment.

Students in Des Moines, Iowa, hoped to collect 80 tons of waste paper Saturday to kick off Earth Week. By Sunday, they had gathered over 200 tons.

A weekend fund-raising rally in Hartford, Conn., collected an estimated $15,000 for the Connecticut Earth Action Group. The rally was described by a policeman as the "happiest, cleanest and best' he had ever seen.

The Atlanta display was among the most dramatic. A live man sits by himself among piles of trash in the building otherwise occupied by apes and other primates.

Curator Vernon Kisling said the man-surrounded-by-garbage demonstration is an effort to dramatize the danger man and other animals face because of garbage and pollution.

The teach-ins, seminars and demonstrations will take place throughout the nation's second annual Earth Week in hopes of emphasizing ways each individual can contribute to a cleaner, greener,healthier planet.

Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken said in a proclamation "Progress has been made, but we must now shift our emphasis from consciousness of the problem to an active, accelerated effort to preserve the environment."

Three recycling centers open in Rhode Island in an effort to get consumers to return their waste paper and cans for reuse by industry.

Cleanup campaigns, with volunteers sweeping trash from parks and roadsides, highlight Earth Week in North Dakota. And grand Forks Mayor Hugo Magnuson has urged all citizens to "focus on solutions to such problems as conservation, environmental management, ecology and population."

Malone Light Poles Struck

The light poles on East Malone took a beating this weekend according to police.

Police report a two-car accident on East Malone Sunday night when a car driven by Olivel Dumay of Sikeston struck a second car driven by Terri Lynn Donoho of 321 Hardin. The Dumay car went out of control hitting a light pole.

A one-car accident occurred Saturday night when a car driven by Robert Gardner of 1605 East Kathleen went out of control on East Malone and hit a light pole. Gardner was arrested on a charge of careless driving.

East Malone was the scene of a two-car accident Saturday night when a car driven by Billie Briggs of 707 Greer turned into the path of a vehicle driven by Daniel Griffith of 412 Kendall.

Griffith was going east on Malone and Briggs was turning from Malone into Pine Street. Briggs was taken to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital and released. Briggs was charged with careless driving.

Larry Curtner of Morehouse was charged with driving while intoxicated following a head-on collision Saturday night.

Police report that Curtner struck a car driven by Woodrow Sills of Sikeston. The accident occurred at the intersection of East Malone and Kingshighway.

Curtner was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for injuries.

Soviets Orbit 'Station'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government put a new satellite called Salute into earth orbit today. The Russians called it a "scientific station" but said nothing about any men being aboard.

If the satellite is unmanned, it could be joined by a manned spacecraft that would link up. There have been rumors for a week that the Soviets were preparing for a manned shot, and West Germany's Bochum observatory said it expects another launching late tonight.

The goal of the Soviet manned space program is the establishment of orbital space laboratories, but space officials have announced no date for this.

Bochum observatory reported that it recorded the launch of Salute at 3:40 a.m.—9:40 p.m. Sunday EST—and said the craft was using a radio frequency reserved in the past for manned space flights.

The Soviet government usually refers to unmanned space shots as "automatic," but the first announcements of Salute did not use this word.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the mission of the station was "the adjustment of elements of the design and onboard systems, carrying out scientific studies and investigations in cosmic flight." It said the station's high point from the earth was 137.9 miles and the low point 124.2 miles—and orbit "close to that which was calculated."

The time of the orbit is 88.5 minutes and its angle of inclination to the equator is 51.6 degrees, Tass said.

"The on-board systems, equipment and scientific apparatus of the station are functioning normally,' the report said. "The coordination-computing center is processing incoming information."

The last manned Soviet space flight was Soyuz 9, launched on June 1, 1970. It carried cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastyanov to a space endurance record, circling the earth for 17 days, 16 hours, and 59 minutes.

The purpose of the flight, according to Soviet scientists, was to test man's ability in an extended state of weightlessness and to practice manual navigation techniques.

The Soviets were the first to put a man into space.

They orbited Yuri A. Gagarin on April 12, 1961, and just last week celebrated the 10th anniversary of that mission with an official celebration in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses.

Since losing the race to land a man on the moon to the Americans in 1969, the Soviets have emphasized their preference for unmanned space missions.

Bone Broken in Scuffle With Officer

Charles D. Blancett of 222 Illinois is in the city jail this morning with a broken bone in his right hand and charged with assaulting a police officer, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. His arrest followed a Saturday night confrontation with police at the Park-A-Lot Drive In on East Malone.

The incident occurred when police made a routine check of the Park-A-Lot Saturday night and found two youths in possession of liquor. The two unidentified youths were taken to the city jail, charged with possession, and later returned to their car at the drive-in.

Patrolman Odis Applewhite returned the youths to their car and as he was leaving, police said Blancett and another man standing in the parking lot began using profane language to protest the arrests. Applewhite stopped his patrol car to ask the two not to use profane language.

Blancett then was accused by police of making a racial slur against Applewhite and the patrolman placed him under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Blancett was reported to have refused to get into the patrol car and when Applewhite radioed for assistance, police charged Blancett hit him on the head with a beer can. Applewhite charged that Blancett also grabbed him by the collar and attempted to choke him.

The two men wrestled and Applewhite was able to gain control and use his night stick to subdue Blancett. The patrolman struck Blancett on the hand.

When assistance came Blancett was taken to the city jail and then to Missouri Delta Community Hospital where he was treated for a broken bone.

Police report that Blancett then refused to pay the bill for the medical treatment.

Blancett is being held on $500 bond.

Major Problem Solutions Elude State Legislators

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Legislature comes back to work today with none of its major problems near solution.

Unless one house or the other does a lot of skipping around on the heavy calendars of pending bills the weighty legislation isn't likely to be reached this week.

The House has an awesome 375 bills or more on its calendar and the Senate has perhaps 150.

Hundreds of state revenue employes planned to crowd the Senate galleries late today to make clear they want some action taken on a bill to extend the present income tax increase beyond next January. They hope that out of it will come some promised pay raises.

The director of revenue, James E. Schaffner, said he did not plan to interfere with the demonstration so long as no worktime is lost. The employes indicated they would go to the Senate galleries after they get off work.

The Senate Appropriations Committee is holding the House-passed money bills until some indication is had that the necessary revenue will be coming in.

Addiction High Among GIs

SAIGON (AP) — Two U.S. congressmen said today that heroin addiction among American troops in Vietnam is of epidemic proportions.

They blamed corrupt Vietnamese officials for part of the problem and said the ready availability of drugs makes the situation almost impossible for the U.S. Command to control.

The two congressmen are Rep. Morgan Murphy, D-Ill., and Rep. Robert H. Steele, rconn. The House Foreign Affairs Committee sent them to Southeast Asia to look into the drug problem. They spent three days in Vietnam, visited Laos and attended a narcotics conference in Bangkok.

Steele said figures provided by the U.S. Command indicated that 10 to 15 per cent of the American troops in Vietnam—about 30,000 to 45,000 men—are using high grade heroin which is between 94 and 97 per cent pure.

Steele blamed the extensive use of heroin in part on the "widespread and mistaken belief that it is not addictive if snorted or smoked" and that it doesn't have the odor and bulk of marijuana.

In 1970, he continued, between 59 and 90 GIs died from overdoses of heroin.

Murphy said he and Steele were approached several times by Vietnamese heroin dealers working the streets of downtown Saigon, a vial of heroin roughly a fourth of a gram, sells for $1.80 to 42.10 and the average addict requires two vials a day.

Both congressmen said the South Vietnamese government has not done enough about the problem and that it has just started realizing the extent of it, expecially among young Vietnamese.

"We have every reason to believe that corruption among public officials is an important factor in smuggling heroin to our troops in Vietnam," said Steele. "The time is long overdue when our allies should recognize the extent of the problem.'

Before their departure for Hong Kong, the two congressmen conferred with Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who told them he had received numerous complaints of heroin addiction among young Vietnamese.

"Ky told us if he was put in charge of the problem that he could clean it up in two months," said Steele.

Steele said he and Murphy were "especially concerned by the use of Vietnamese and Laotian military aircraft in smuggling. There is little evidence that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are involved in smuggling.'

Fifty per cent of the heroin is believed to come from Laos and the rest from Hong Kong and Thailand, he added.

Help Too Late For Boy Caught In Snowstorm

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)–A 14-year-old youth caught in a snow storm was found alive late Sunday high on a Sandia mountain trail, but died before rescuers could get him down.

The boy, Carl Gustafson of Albuquerque was with Robert Carter, 16, of Albuquerque on a hike up La Luz trail to 10,000-feet Sandia Crest when the storm caught them and young Gustafson became exhausted.

Carter went on to the top, nearly a mile away, and reached the tramway restaurant near the crest shortly after 6 p.m. A tramway operator hiked down the trail and found Gustafson, but couldn't get him up the trail alone and went back to the crest for more help.

Three men took blankets and capes down to the youth, who was described as incoherent and "in bad shape."

The storm dropped more than six inches of snow on the mountain during the afternoon and evening, while temperatures dropped to near 20 degrees.

TAKING THE AX TO THE HATCH ACT

The history of civilization is largely the story of struggle between the "ins" and the "outs"; between the haves and the have-nots; between centralized, government power and individual, "people power." Seldom in history has there ever been such vast, massive government power as that which exists right now in Washington, D. C. Unlike the Soviet Union, however, where there are virtually no restraints against the power of the government in Moscow, much of the power of government in the United States is restricted and confined by law. Were it not so, the people of this country would have no liberty at all.

One of the most important restraints now standing in the way of unlimited bureaucratic control in Washington is the Corrupt Practices Act of 1939, commonly known as the Hatch Act. Briefly put, the Hatch Act prohibits the soliciting or receiving of any political contribution by one Federal employee to another, and it prohibits the use of official authority or influence of government employees for the purpose of interfering with an election or nomination for office.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which has filed suit against the Hatch Act, claims that the measure "discriminates" against government workers. What the Act really does is prohibit government employees from soliciting, collecting, receiving or disbursing financial contributions for political purposes. It does not prohibit voluntary contributions, so long as they are not made to another Federal officer or employee.

Similarly, the act prohibits Federal employees from taking an active part in the management of political campaigns. It does not prevent Federal employees from expressing their opinions on any or all political subjects and candidates. Thus, they may wear a political button or badge, but they cannot distribute campaign literature, badges or buttons.

There is nothing in the Hatch Act which interferes with the political rights of government workers. What it does do, is prevent the government employee, by virtue of his power and influence within the government, from bringing political pressure to bear on others.

These are important restraints, and they should be maintained at all costs. Otherwise, the power of centralized government will be increased a hundred fold - possibly more. And power in the people through the grassroots of America will be reduced by the same proportion.

Lack of trust is injurious to government. If the populace is skeptical of office holders or the proposals they sanction — such as jail improvements, tax increases, etc. — it will not take long for the mechanics of government to come to a grinding halt.

Such is the case in Scott County, and why not? Why should the electorate endorse proposals made by persons they cannot trust? As things now stand the county's entire body of elected officials is subject to doubt because of a situation that remains to be cleared or openly aired to the people.

It is unfortunate that a few politicians can cast doubtful shadows over an entire government body, but such is the case in the much belabored issue that has been left swirling over the collector's office since Aubrey Lee Michael's resignation Jan. 6, 1970.

If I was an elected official doing my job properly and honestly, I would be raising nine kinds of hell with prosecuting attorney Thomas Gilmore to take the necessary steps to make issues clear to the electorate and give assurance that corrective action will be taken against those who have violated the people's trust and laws.

Let us examine in a common sense manner just one aspect of the case -- the reported Dec. 8, 1969, armed robbery when deputy tax collector J. W. Shuffit said he was accosted by a lone gunman in the courthouse.

After more than a year's lapse of time it remains unclear as to whether actually there was an armed robbery. Shuffit says there was. Authorities apparently remain unconvinced. If authorities have reason to suspect Shuffit's story, they owe it to the people to come out with it. And what about the dark cloud that's been left hanging over Shuffit? Such a thing must be hard to live with.

It may be that time (a thing of which Gilmore seems to have an abundant supply) will make clear the issues. But the prosecutor may find that time can turn against him. He may, in fact, come to the time when voters put a man in office who will make the answers available.

INTERNATIONAL RESCUE COMMITTEE NEEDS HELP

Last fall, Sharon Decker, a 10th-grade student at Cameron County High School in Emporium, Pa., read her history class a newspaper article, about the work of the International Rescue Committee.

After discussing the worldwide refugee problem, the class decided to stop talking and try to do something -- to sponsor bringing a refugee family to Emporium. They asked their teacher, Max Narby, to call IRC headquarters in New York for information, and the IRC immediately alerted its caseworkers in Europe.

In January, Stefan Nowak (not his real name), his wife and 10-year-old son arrived in New York enroute to the little community in the heart of the Allegheny Mountains. They had gone from Communist Poland Yugoslavia as tourists and from there escaped to Italy where they were sent to refugee camp.

Emporium high school students found an apartment for the Nowak family, furnished it, arranged for English lessons and found Nowak, a metal worker and auto mechanic, a job with a local automobile agency. A townwide fund-raising campaign was started to obtain funds for the final resettlement and integration of the family into the community until they become self-supporting.

The Nowaks were only three of more than 8,000 refugees who fled Communist East Europe last year. Close to 3,000 of these were resettled overseas, 1,900 in the United States. But some 5,100 were still on the IRC caseload at the beginning of 1971.

Unlike most organizations making annual reports at this time of year, the International Rescue Committee regrets to say that it had more customers than ever in 1970 -- more, in fact, than in any other year since it was established in 1933. Even the crisis following the 1956 Hungarian revolution did not equal 1970 in terms of the massive number of refugees assisted. In addition to those in Europe, it aided more than 11,000 Cuban refugees entering the United States through Miami and elsewhere. Many of them were children sent away by their parents before they reached 15 -- the draft age in Cuba.

Despite intense surveillance by Red Chinese authorities, more than 10,000 refugees managed to escape mainland China to Hong Kong. IRC gave material assistance to 1,300 of them. During a single three-week period last October, 300 Chinese attempted to swim the three-mile-wide bay separating the mainland from Hong Kong. Many of them drowned.

In all, about 125,000 refugees on every continent benefitted directly from IRC programs in 1970.

Business promises to be just as good -- and bad -- in 1971.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

It would help relieve the monotony of office and factory life if every one individually and at his own choice took a day off now and then because he was feeling good rather than feeling ill. It could be called Personal Mental Health Day.

A woman is never at her best if she tries to carry on a conversation while eating an apple.

Women are generally grouchier when they wake up than men, and many of them hate to smile before noon. Some dislike even being spoken to until after they have eaten.

TWO KINDS OF CRITICS

Finding fault is wholesome -- if it is the prelude to improvement. The greatest fault - finders are often the greatest builders. Looking at yesterday's creations with a critical eye, they find ways to do a better job tomorrow. Their kind of faultfinding is different than that of the cynics who never get farther than criticizing the productive efforts of others.

such faultifiners as this will have a hard time getting their teeth -- or claws -- into the message of a late nationwide advertisement of the investor - owned electric light and power companies. While the detractors have blamed these companies for everything in the book from blackouts and high power rates to polluting the atmosphere, the record as set forth in the advertisement is worth reading. Among other things, it says, "... did you realize there would be no inflation if the price of everything else you buy behaved like the price of electricity? Why didn't the price of electricity skyrocket like other things? Didn't the wages we pay go up? Yes. And didn't our total tax bill and the cost of plants, lines, and equipment go up as well? Of course. Then why is the price of electricity so low?"

The advertisement than goes on to point out that the price of power has been held down as a result of the expenditure of billions of dollars for new equipment which produces and delivers electricity more economically. This, coupled with the fact that people use more electricity, enables the investor - owned companies to use expanded facilities more efficiently. Their story is simply the story of the free enterprise system that so many of our "advanced" thinkers hold up to scorn -- a system that is unique to the United States and the basis of opportunity and freedom for all our people.

CARING FOR BALDY

A man with a shiny bald head attended a country square dance. After several dances and drinks the man retired to an adjoining room, where the women had left their babies for the evening.

He found a vacant spot on a bed and lay down with the sleeping babies, immediately falling asleep. He was soon awakened by fumbling hands brushing about his bald dome and a pin was fastened.

A hand patted him on the head and a woman's loving voice said:

"Bless it 'ittle heart, was its 'ittle back end ditting cold?"

HERE COMES FATHER'S DAY: Use some of the following strategy when shopping for a Father's Day gift this year: (1) Surreptitiously, look over what he currently owns -- so you will not make the mistake of duplication. (2) Make notes on his sizes to avoid the disappointment in giving him something he likes -- but can't wear. (3) When selecting apparel remember his "type," his life style, his tastes -- and do not make the mistake of giving "swinging" clothes to a gent past the "swinging" stage!

YOUTH CRUSADES AGAINST LITTERBUGS

A Klamath Falls, Oregon, youth, 16 -year - old high school junior Bill Manley, has launched his own fight against litter in his community. He sought and received permission from the Klamath Falls City Council to cleanup the city. He has enlisted other high school boys and girls to assist him on weekends in gathering roadside debris, cleaning vacant lots and removing waste from the shores of Klamath Lake, adjacent to the city. According to a press report, "The work is being done without pay. He told county and city officials he is just interested in keeping things clean."

Young Mr. Manley, by stimulating the interest of youth in an anti - litterbug campaign around his community, could well start a national youth movement for cleaner cities. After all, it is the youth who will be living for many decades with the mess that litterbugs are creating around us today. The effort of this high school student and his helpers deserves the widest publicity and encouragement of fellow citizens.

H.L. Hunt Says

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM UPHELD

No government has the right to compel individuals to act against their religious beliefs, and government should safeguard the right of parents to care for their children. Yet the Amish community in our country has had a running battle with the government over their belief that public schooling is morally harmful to their children.

Finally, the Amish have won a significant victory in this battle. The Wisconsin State Supreme Court has ruled that the application of compulsory education laws to Amish children in unconstitutional and that these children cannot be forced to attend a public high school.

This decision is eminently sound. In the first place, the primary responsibility for education must remain with a child's parents; otherwise he becomes simply a ward of the state.

Further, as the Court recognized, the right to uphold one's religious convictions is constitutionally guaranteed. Therefore a state law cannot force an Amish parent to send his child to public schools since the parent believes that this will seriously damage the child's religious formation.

The Amish have clearly shown that the education they provide within their community produces outstanding citizens. There are no Amish on welfare, no unemployed Amish, and no crime in the Amish community. This is largely because the Amish have recognized the organic unity among family, education, religion and community. Forcing these children into a public high school would have destroyed this unity and made the children susceptible to all the problems they now avoid. The Amish should be congratulated for their stout defense of a basic principle of our nation: the right to freedom of religion. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— The scandals we have uncovered in the Army's $1.1 billion commissary system were no surprise to the top brass, who a year ago received a 63-page report detailing how commissaries around the world had been looted by employees, customers, shippers and even friendly governments.

The brass characteristically suppressed the report to prevent the taxpayers from finding out how their money has been squandered. When we asked about the Army Comptrolier General's findings, one colonel implied the report didn't even exist. Our request for a copy was turned down brusquely by the Defense Department.

Nevertheless, we have obtained an unauthorized copy, entitled "Worldwide Review of Army Commissaries," dated March 15, 1970. Page after page, it speels out a sordid story of mismanagement, waste and outright thievery. Here are the highlights:

The study accuses "every cashier" in the Saigon commissary of punching up phony figures and pocketing the difference. Customers were allowed to run up a staggering credit of $2 million with no hope of collecting the deliquent accounts.

The Bangkok commissary overstocked items, including 500,000 unneeded pounds of boneless beef, that were allowed to rot, were eaten by rats or were sold for a song. The losses, set at $5,256 in the first quarter of fiscal 1968, soared to a breathtaking $300,000 in one quarter of 1970. The Royal Thai government allegedly also pilfered, lost or broke $80,000 worth of goods.

--UNDER THE COUNTER--

Throughout the commissary system, employees have been selling goods under the counter for their own profit. The report cites unidentified mess hall workers who would pick up huge cans of coffee at $11 apiece, sell five cans on the black market and deliver five to the mess hall. Some thieves were kept on the payroll after they had been discovered.

Stealing from commissaries apparently has become a favorite sport. At Fort Dix, N.J., despite good warehouse security, $9,000 worth of coffee and $4,000 in canned hams disappeared in a single night. Some of the thievery occurred before the goods ever reached the commissaries. The auditors found 109 cases of meat were missing when a ship reached Inchon, Korea.

In many commissaries, deliquent customers were given credit after they had paid with "an endless cycle of bad checks." The Army auditors also found the accounting so bad in commissaries that millions in petty pilferage hadn't been caught. The sorry accounting continues to this day.

Totally untrained officials helped to run commissaries in Bangkok, Saigon and Seoul, also at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and Fort Richardson, Alaska. Their incompetence resulted in losses five times greater than found in well-managed commissaries.

In Japan two commissary annexes were renovated at a cost of $45,000 "although sufficient justification existed to continue operation of either store."

The Army auditors sometimes got the run-around from commissary officials. They made appointment after appointment with an Army contract officer in Thailand, for example, to find out why a $250,000 storage contract went to a contractor who already owed $75.000 for failing to comply with an earlier contract. Each time the contract officer failed to show up.

In some instances, generals loaded up commissary shelves with their own favorite foods. The choice delectables went unpurchased by the wives of servicemen with less luxurious tastes. Even the secret auditors' reports, however, discreetly omitted the names of the offending generals.

On the whole, commissary officers seem to have a cavalier attitude toward the taxpayers' funds.

--WASHINGTON WHIRL--

Calley's Conversion--Intimates tell us Lt. William Calley has turned to religion. He has held lengthy talks with several Army chaplains in an attempt to make his peace with God. These intimates say Calley has persuaded himself that God won't hold him responsible for carrying out what he believed to be military orders at My Lai.

Cooper-Church--Senators John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Ida., whose celebrated resolution prohibits the U.S. from sending ground troops into Cambodia or Laos, are now in the final drafting stages of a new resolution. This would restrict U.S. military action in Indochina to fighting only when American troops were in imminent danger of attack. Church wants to send the resolution to the White House for the President's signature. Cooper, however, feels this would put the President on the spot. Nixon would either have to kowtow to the Senate, argues Cooper, or appear to be against ending the war.

Black Army--Col. Hassan Jeru-Ahman, the glib promoter who has wangled $523,000 out of the federal government to subsidize a private black army, has been in league with the neo-Nazis. By Hassan's own admission, he accepted at least $1,000 from neo-Nazi Willis Carto and used one of Carto's henchmen, Doug Clee, as a fund raiser. In 1967, Hassan wrote a crude anti-Semitic tract and as late as 1970, his men distributed copies on the street. All this has so outraged Jason Silverman of the Anti-Defamation League that he has written an angry salvo of letters to the Health, Education, and Welfare Department objecting to the $523,000 grant. Hassan denies he is anti-Semitic. "The Jewish community has given me more help than anyone," he told us. But faster than long hairs at a rock festival.

Or the President could put all government agencies at the service of both sides to mediate, meditate and cajole. But both sides have already told the government to stay out. It can be prrsumed that this was the message union chief Abel delivered to Secretary of Labor Jim Hodgson during a friendly two-hour junch in the latter's office on April 6.

What will President Nixon do? He has one other alternative -- if he doesn't freeze the entire economy, which he won't. He could let both sides clobber each other. He could let them fight it out all winter on cold picket lines and in fireless mile-long mills.

The odds at this moment are that he will let them fight it out. The next inflation alert will flare about July 1 --and it probably will light up the building and construction field. It may have some reference to the steel industry -- but not much.

The President will do some jawboning. But he and his executive "assistant president" George Shultz do not believe in using Taft-Hartley to cool things. Do there will be a battle.

What the public doesn't realize == and Messrs. Nixon and Shultz do -- is that , unfortunately, the last came first into the spotlight. There are four steel union negotiations in all -- can, aluminum, copper and finally basic "steel" itself. The April 13 inflation alert already has fingered the can agreements -- which, incidentally, if followed by the other three industries will result in a $2.1 billion cash wage increase alone for the entire field during the next three years. That's considerably more than the industry makes.

Now the aluminum industry is negotiating with the union. When this is over two sectors will be locked in on the can formula. Thencomes copper -- with a June 30 expiration date. When this is tied up, there will bave been three can-type contracts with basic steel coming up.

At that point "Abe" Abel, pressured by his rank and file, will strike unless he gets what his union got in the other three pacts.

If President Nixon were going to move he would have to act now. But he's not. And the steel industry, any simple audit will show, cannot take the can formula without an increase in prices. Ane how can the country take a price increase?

The competition is too sharp. American steel producers pay $3.88 more in wages and benefits per hour than do the Japanese -- and $3.31 more than the Germans and the rest of the Common Market (with slight variations).

And another factor making bargaining tough is the agreement by the Lukens Steel Company, Coatesville, Pa., albeit a small one, to shut down its mills for a two-week holiday each summer. The young members especially are fighting for this demand.

So perhaps the Baltimore travel agent doesn't really have a crystall ball. Just a good nose for news.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Long Strike Scene:
Nixon to Permit Steel Labor And Management to Fight It Out Alone.

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON--Not since an olden editor said go east young man to Henry (Dr. Livingston, I presume?) Stanley, has a travel agent been helpful in a crisis crunch. Now I've come upon such an agent who appears to predict flatly there well be a national steel strike this summer.

In the Bethlehem Steel Workers Union publication, the "09 Express," there appeared an enterprising advertisement, placed by the Union Travel Service of Baltimore, Md. In a recent edition of this publication, dispatched to some 27,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America (USWA) (AFL-CIO) employed at Bethlehem's Sparrows Point plant, the nation's largest, the travel service says clairvoyantly:

"When the mill shuts down take a Caribbean cruise. August 16 to 23 and August 24 to 31. Eight days, seven nights..."

And then the delights of Miami and Nassau and the blue waters race through the copy.

And this sounds like a sound prediction from Baltimore's asphalt jungle. There is little doubt in truly informed circles that the massive steel union led by I. W. "Abe" Abel, the quiet man who pulled scores of thousands of mill hands from the steel factories during the height of World War II, will walk out in the early morning of August 1.

This national strike -- or even selective stoppages -- would cripple much of the economy. What then, does President Nixon plan to do?

That's the multi-billion dollar question. A steel strike would be a long one. It could run through Christmas right into 1972 as a similar stoppage ran through the end of 1959 into 1960 -- also a national election year.

In an effort to pressure both sides, the President could threaten to buy steel abroad if there was a strike and so slash orders and work which would affect both sides. But the government buys only five per cent of the industry's products -- and that goes from ships to tin cans. At most, this comes to a total of a billion dollars and the basic steel purchases affected would be far less. So whom would Mr. Nixon frighten?

Or the President could -- and probably will -- call on both sides to extend the contract three months or so from the August 1 expiration date. This would only heat up the rank and file which wants its cost of living clause now, right now -- or yesterday, in fact.

Or the President could say the health and safety of the nation is threatened and cool it all off with an 80-day Taft-Hartley injuntion. Which would merely delay the deluge. Obviously, the companies and the union locals will not come into the ark two by two.

He could issue a construction trades type of Executive Order freezing wages and prices in the steel industry. But this would bring the pickets out faster than long hairs at a

Certain Pajamas Are Flammable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission advised consumers Friday that certain inexpensive women's pajamas imported from Taiwan by the F.W. Woolworth Co. are dangerously flammable.

Approximately 1,000 dozen of the pajamas were imported by Woolworth and put on the market in April and May of 1970, the FTC said.

"Tests of the pajamas have shown them to be dangerously flammable," the FTC said. "Every effort is being made to remove them from the market.'

Identified by the label as "Primstyle" pajamas, the garments originally sold for $3.65 and were later reduced to $2.99, the FTC said.

The label also identifies the garments as being made in Taiwan and says the materials are cotton, 35 per cent, and phytrel, 65 per cent. The FTC, however, said tests have shown that the material actually consists of Cotton and rayon.

The pajamas are white with floral designs in orange-yellow or blue-lavender.

Ann Landers

Lover . . . . Wake Up Before It's Too Late

Dear Ann Landers: As a graduate student who has spent the last five years with pot and non-pot smoking friends, I would like to respond to the student who thought grass brought out the best in her. She recommended it for those who have a hard time "opening up to others."

I tried pot when I was a freshman at the University of Illinois. I swore off after four pot parties. Every time I smoked I became involved in ridiculous arguments about inane subjects. I ended up depressed and remorseful.

I do not sit in judgment of those who smoke. I take no position on the legality or the morality of pot smoking. All I know is that it was no good for me and I will never smoke again. But because I am not a smoker, and I often find myself in the company of those who are, I am in a position to make some fairly objective observations -- and I have done so. They are as follows: Heavy smokers, be they law students, med students, architect students or philosophy majors, are much more pleasant, more alert, and they communicate better when they are not smoking. The notion that pot brings out hidden talent or brilliance is a myth. What pot does is remove the inhibitions, cloud the judgment, make blabbermouths out of some people and tie the tongues of others. -----Been There

Dear Been: Your letter supports the theories I have heard expressed by the best experts in the field -- others who have also Been There. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: A very attractive, intelligent, soft-spoken woman just left my home. She is my lover's wife. It was our first meeting and I am still in a state of shock. His description of her was a far cry from the person I met.

For the past two years he has been describing his wife as a hopeless neurotic, a semi-invalid, unreasonable, hyper-critical, violently jealous, etc. I was astonished to see a woman who is in excellent health, cultured, and refined. She had come to tell me I could have her husband if I wanted him. Imagine my surprise, after he had told me she would fight a divorce to her dying day, and that our only hope was to wait until he could afford to have her institutionalized.

I learned she was his third wife(news to me), that he had had numerous affairs, but his wife was willing to keep the marriage together in the hope that eventually he would outgrow the chasing around. He is a wonderful father to their three children which she said made up for a great many other things.

I thanked her for coming, and when I closed the door behind her I also closed the door on HIM. As I sit her I wonder how I could have been such a fool. I feel used and unclean. How many single women who are cheating with married men are buying the same line I brought? If anyone out there is in my shoes, for God's sake wake up before it's too late to pick up the pieces and make a decent life for yourself. -----Comes The Dawn

Dear Dawn: I can add nothing to your letter except my thanks for having written it. I'm happy for you -- and sad for the heel's next victim whom he probably has already selected.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Sned for Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's And Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Greenhouse
By Paul Flowers

In my schizophrenic way, I am torn between by devotion to eternal truth and my affection for my militant - activist buddies, but I must yield to the dominant urge and lay bare a stark fact of life, namely, that "pig," as an epithet for a law enforcement officer, is no linguistic breakthrough, but dates back at least 160 years.

I get this from a revived edition of Capt. Francis Grose's "Dictionary of the Vulgar Tongue," edited by Robert Cromie and published by Follett Publishing Co. at $1.95, in paper. The subtitle proclaims it "a dictionary of buckish slang, university wit, and pickpocket eloquence," and the dedication reads: "The canting academy, or villanies discovered, wherein are shewn the mysterious and villanous practices of that wicked crew, commonly known as hectors, trepanners, gilts & with several new catches and songs, also a complete canting dictionary, both of old words, such as are now most in use. A book very necessary (to be known but not practiced) for all people."

"Pig" is defined as a police officer; a common expression was "floor the pig and bold," which meant "knock down the officer and run away."

This may occasion some disappointment among activists - militants who probably thought they created the term, but into each life must come some disillusionment.

Grose's dictionary discloses that the sheriff's picture frame is a gallows or pillory.

A few others are:

Caluliflower, a clergyman's wig.

Bear, one who contracts to deliver a certain quantity or sum of stock, on a future day, at stated price ... selling what he has not got.

Bull, one who buys what he has not the money to pay for.

Finger post, a parson, so called because he points out the way to others, where he has never been himself.

Irish apricots, potatoes. (In Dixie we know grits as Georgia ice cream, and balck - eye peas as Georgia strawberries.)

Muzzle, a beard.

Robinson Plans to Serve out Term

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — State Treasurer William E.Robinson, cleared by a circuit court jury Thursday of a charge he used his office for private gain, says he probably will serve out his present term.

But he says he doesn't know what his political future will be or whether he will try for a second term as treasurer.

He was a leader in the 1969-70 campaign to win adoption of an amendment to the constitution letting a treasurer run for reelection. It was adopted by the voters in August, 1970.

And that campaign was a key to his defense in the trial. He admitted receiving $2,500 from James B. Crismon, former Bonne Terre, Mo. bank president, but said it was a contribution toward the amendment campaign.

Crismon testified it was a payoff for having received state deposits in the past and for assurance of future deposits.

Robinson, a Democrat, told newsmen after the trial his "nightmare" showed him who his friends were and who his political enemies were as well.

He would not comment on the earlier suggestion from Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes that he should resign from the treasurer's office and go into court as a private citizen.

Hearnes said he was sure that Robinson and his family are greatly relieved but he didn't think that the acquittal had cleared the air for the Democratic party.

He said public officials like himself and Robinson have it a little different than other citizens. "Any politician is guilty until proven innocent, rather than innocent until proven guilty," Hearnes said.

The governor said he thought Robinson's attorneys felt that way, too, and worked to clear Robinson.

He said the general public has been reading all the charges for many months and he did not know whether the court decision would suddenly change their minds.

Meanwhile a resolution is pending in the Missouri House calling for an investigation to decide whether the House should consider drafting of impeachment articles against Robinson.

Co-sponsors of the resolution are Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, and majority leader Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis.

Rabbitt was quoted in St.Louis as saying they would have to review the situation Wednesday. Godfrey said he thought the resolution probably would be abandoned.

Four Treated

Four were treated Thursday in the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Dewey Bickfor, in car accident; Juanita Bufords, Bell City, car accident; Teresa Ann Garner, East Prairie, injured right hand at play; Clinton Byrant, injured back of head in fall.

TORONTO (AP) — The law should be changed to make wives equally liable with husbands for the payment of alimony, a Canadian authority on family law said recently.

Prof. Julien D. Payne of the University of Western Ontario said the law, which has always regarded men as primarily responsible for paying support, should be brought in line with "legal and economic emancipation of married women."

New Type Program For Dietitians

COLUMBIA— A new type of program for educating dietitians so they will meet professional requirements of the American Dietetic Association will be inaugurated at the University of Missouri July 1 under a five-year grant of $333,435 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The program will be used by the department of nutrition and dietetics of the medical center in conjunction with the food and nutrition section of the school of home economics.

Until the coordinated program is effected, dietetic students from Missouri have served in post-graduate internships or alternate experience for nine months before qualifying as dietitians. Under the new program they will become professional dietitians upon earning bachelor of science degrees.

Two new areas of specialization will be open to students planning to become dietitians. One will be in medical dietetics for clinical dietitians and one in food systems management for administrative dietitians. Students may enter the programs at the end of their sophomore year.

The traditional program which requires post-graduate internship will continue to be offered for students who can not fit into the new program or who prefer the general program.

Plan Devised To Stave off Mass Layoffs

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An emergency plan to stave off massive layoffs at Missouri state mental institutions has been devised by superintendents and administrators.

The program was necessitated by a 15 per cent budget reduction during April, May and June, said Dr. George A. Ulett, state mental health director, Wednesday.

He said 2,160 employes at the hospitals have offered to take up to 10 days leave without pay if necessary to make up the deficit.

Institutions will accept voluntary leaves without pay immediately if it can be done without disturbing patient care, Ulett said.

He said he plans to ask Thursday for two weeks leave without pay but will continue to work and he expects other administrative employes to do the same.

Hospital administrators agreed to reduce purchases, not to fill any vacancies and to effect other economies. Programs will be held to a minimum.

Ulett said the move is a gamble in hope that state collections increase in June so that those taking leave now can get their full pay.

He said it appears most institutions have enough volunteers to prevent any mass layoffs.

New Subdivision For Dexter

DEXTER— Work is underway on a 44-lot subdivision in west Dexter, a project of a newly-formed Dexter corporation, Westside Enterprises, Inc.

Principal leaders in the development are Rod O'Donnell and Joe E. Weber, Dexter businessmen.

Westside Subdivision is located on One Mile Road, west and just north of the Market Street intersection with One Mile Road.

The subdivision, fully approved by FHA, will be for persons with moderate income. People qualifying will pay $200 down including all closing costs, with interest rates as low as one per cent.

O'Donnell explained that the development is "for the working man in the moderate income range and it's a chance for him to own his own home, the fulfillment of a lifelong ambition of many families."

The homes will be built from as many as five different plans, with different front variations, such as different roof lines and front window arrangements.

The homes will range in size from two-bedroom to four-bedroom, and will have a brick front, carport and storage area. Other home features include carpeting in most rooms, central heat and optional central air conditiong, built-in range and factory-built cabinets.

Work should be started on three homes by May 1, according to the developers.

"All building will be done by local contracters, as far as possible," Weber points out. "We feel this is an important addition to Dexter, both for the prospective home owner and for local builders."

All of the lots except two are at least 70 by 140 feet, and will be seeded after the home is built.

Other features of the Westside Subdivision include complete underground utilities and telephone lines, along with very adequate fire protection and water flow and sewer lines, that are being installed this week.

Streets will be laid soon, using strict standards.

O'Donnell and Weber both point out that applications are now being taken for the housing subdivision and any interested person may contact Westside Realty for more information.

Panama Found To Have Risen Out of Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deep-sea-drilling oceanographers today reported bizarre evidence that the Isthmus of Panama literally rose out of the ocean millions of years ago to form a permanent barrier between the Caribbean and the Pacific.

The evidence, culled from ages-old mud and silt tapped from the ocean bed in the latest exploit of the famed government-sponsored drilling vessel Glomar Challenger, is that:

The present isthmus actually is an area of elevated ocean floor that was forced to rise above sea level by pressure exerted by fragments of a gigantic break-away submarine mountain ridge. The latter had evidently drifted some 400 miles after pulling away from the rest of the mountain, the scientists said.

Doctors Tjeerd H. van Andel and G. Ross Heath of Oregon State University's department of Oceanography told about it in a report to the annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union.

They said this new explanation on the formation of the Isthmus-thus closing off a once-open passage between the oceans—constituted the foremost of a number of significant findings obtained during the latest phase of the two-year-old Deep Sea Drilling Project sponsored by the National science Foundation and managed by the Scripps Institution of Oceanography. The latter is located at the University of California, San Diego.

How do you grow Amiben™-clean beans in a low rainfall area?

When you're out to utilize every drop of rain, everything you do is geared to conserve soil moisture and at the same time protect the structure of your soil.

Instead of double discing to incorporate a pre-plant herbicide—which can risk soil moisture loss and working the soil too fine—a growing number of farmers now apply Amiben to the soil surface and do their "incorporating" with a rotary hoe immediately after planting.

You will find that it's a good practice to use the rotary hoe any time, every time you:
1—use Amiben in low rainfall areas,
2—plant into marginal soil moisture and rainfall doesn't follow in 3-5 days, 3—apply Amiben after beans have been planted.*

Farmers agree Amiben is today's most effective soybean herbicide. When rainfall goes against you, use the rotary hoe to start Amiben working.

You gain today's best grass and weed control even where rainfall is scarce. You avoid the double discing that goes with pre-plant herbicides. And you take a firm step toward soil and moisture conservation on your farm.

Food Stamp Changes Would Open Door More to Low-Income Families

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration hopes to put into effect by fall a sweet and sour blend of food-stamp regulations opening the door more widely to low-income families and shutting it on indigents and hippies.

The proposed rules, a followup to a new food-stamp law passed by Congress late last year, were announced Thursday by the Agriculture Department.

Asst. Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng told newsmen the most far-reaching feature is a national income-eligibility standard for operating the foodstamp program uniformly in all states.

Each state welfare agency at present can determine the limit a family may earn before it is cut off from food-stamp eligibility. A family of four in South Carolina, for example, is limited to a take-home pay of $180 a month before stamp qualification is ended.

The proposed rule will allow the same family, anywhere in the United States, to earn up to $360 amonth and still be eligible for food stamps, the coupons giving poor people a bonus advantage at food stores.

The eligibility standard was described by Lyng as having tremendous impact on the vast food-stamp program.

Only three states, Alaska, New Jersey and New York, now have earnings limits equal to or larger than the $360 per month proposed in the new rules.

The remainder of the states have cutoffs less than the pending regulations would permit. Officials said the effect would be to allow more persons into the food-stamp program.

But Lyng said he did not have an estimate on how many additional persons the liberalization might bring into the food-stamp program or how much it might cost.

The current fiscal year, ending June 30, calls for $1.54 billion for food-stamp expenditures. Nixon budget experts say $2 billion is needed next fiscal year.

About 10.2 million persons at last count were in the stamp program. These are in 45 states and 1,976 of the nation's 3,129 counties.

In addition to food stamps, the Agriculture Department operates a direct commodity-distribution program. All but nine counties in the country are served by one or both of the programs.

The new rules, carrying out congressional orders, also crack down on nonworking family members and college students who cannot prove they are in need. Commune arrangements involving nonrelated persons are barred.

Federal regulations now allow food stamps for any household as long as it meets local welfare requirements. The new rules say that household members under 60 years of age must be blood relatives of linked by marriage.

"That is pretty significant," Lyng said. "This eliminates communes."

The proposed rules also spell out congressional insistence that all able-bodies adults in a food-stamp family register for jobs. Exceptions include mothers with dependent children under 18 years.

Lyng predicted states will be prepared to carry out the new rules by late September.

Editors Explore Need of Panel to Oversee Ethics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Editors are stepping carefully as they explore whether some sort of grievance committee or American press council is needed to oversee newspaper ethics.

"Our problem, it seems to me, is certainly not merely one of public relations," says Erwin D. Canham, editor-in-chief of the Christian Science Monitor.

"It is one of the long-range role of newspapers at a time and in a world which needs honest and accurate information, and independent and courageous expression of opinion," he told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Wednesday.

"I think we must hold and strengthen—perhaps restore—public confidence in our capacity to fulfill the principles to which we are committed," said Canham.

An ASNE panel which he headed "concluded there is certainly a need for more responsible and conscientious professional performance by newspapers," Canham added.

That panel, he said, decided most grievance problems "can be met by a more intelligent, more responsible performance on the part of individual newspapers."

Instead of recommending ASNE set up a press council or grievance-handling group as national machinery to deal with complaints against its member newspapers, the panel proposed an experiment.

As approved by society directors, the ASNE study group is prepared for "a kind of very informal dry run," to see what might have happened had a press council or grievance committee been created to deal with specific cases, Canham said.

ASNE President Newbold Noyes Jr., editor of Washington's Evening Star, said: "There is, to me, something repugnant about the idea that we as a Society should gang up on an individual editor whose concept of what is best for his newspaper or his readers differs from that of a select committee or even a majority of the rest of us, Noyes said.

Fighting Dirty to Keep Your Job

ART BUCHWALD
In The Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — The trouble with most business administration schools is that they teach you everything about business except how to keep your job when a company starts to lay off people during an economy drive.

"The reason they don't teach you how to survive during an economy wave," said my friend Wholesworthy, who has lived through every pink slip crisis in his company for 20 years, "is that the only way to keep your job during a personnel reduction is to fight dirty. And schools don't want to admit you have to fight dirty to stay in business."

"Give me an example," I said.

"All right, suppose you are working as an executive for the Soft-Serve Tennis Ball Co. The word is out that there is going to be a 15 per cent across-the-board cut in jobs. You don't sit back and wait to see if you're in the 15 per cent. You act immediately.

"YOU GO to see Croton, the vice president in charge of personnel, and you say 'If you have to fire someone in my department, Mr. Croton, I would prefer it be me rather than O'Toole. You see, O'Toole has had some serious problems and that is why he hasn't been able to function for the past six months.'

"Croton will reply 'Problems. What problems?'

" 'His drinking, sir. When O'Toole first came here he never touched a drop. Then he fell apart. But it wasn't his fault. You'd have taken to drink too if you had been under the pressure he's faced lately.'

" 'Pressure? What kind of pressure?'

" 'Well, sir. O'Toole's a friend of mine and that's why I hope I'm not violating a confidence. The pressure came mainly from his gambling. O'Toole started losing heavily to the bookies and they threatened to tell his wife about the woman O'Toole was keeping if he didn't pay his debts.'

" 'O'Toole was gambling and keeping a woman and he's got a drinking problem and you want me to keep him on the pay roll?' Croton will say.

" 'We all make mistakes, Mr. Croton,' you protest. 'As soon as O'Toole straightens out his financial affairs and makes up his mind whether he's going to get rid of his wife or his mistress, he'll be a great addition to the company.'

Woman to White House Conference

DEXTER -- Mrs. Frances Vinson will leave Sunday to attend the Little White House Conference on children and youth at Estes Park, Colorado and sometime during the next week President Richard M. Nixon will meet with the group.

Mrs. Vinson was selected by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes in January of 1969 for this honor and since that time has attended meetings throughoutSoutheast Missouri, attended a three state conference in Tulsa, Okla., and is now going to represent Southeast Missouri at the Little White House Conference. These conferences are sponsored every ten years by Presidents of the United States for meeting with youth.

Mrs. Vinson will be accompanied to St. Louis by her husband. Gary, and her mother, Mrs. Frank Seeburger, where she will join approximately 50 other young people who will fly to Colorado.

During the past year a group called the TASK force was formed within the young people selected for this honor andMrs. Vinson has worked with a special medical committee. She is a certified dental assistant.

Youth from 14-22 will attend the conference from all 50 states plus Puerto Rico, it was learned. For each teenager attending an adult will be there also to work with the group.

In addition to working toward this goal with committees and attending meetings since her appointment, She has been active in 4-H work and through this joined a group for a tour of Washington, D.C.

Drought Predicted

CAIRO, ILL. (AP)--A small dark cloud on the horizon?

Cairo's weatherman says we're on the verge of a major drought on the Great Plains.

Haydn Fox, meteorolist at the National Weather Service station said Thursday he bases his prediction on a 20-year recurrence of drought since before the turn of the century.

And this is the year for it to begin, he added.

Fox said the drought area would extend from North Dakota south to Oklahoma, east to the Mississippi River, and north through Illinois and Wisconsin. Precipitation would be, he estimated, one-fourth to one-half normal.

In Chicago, a Weather Service spokesman said, "That's only his personal opinion. We don't make such forecasts. Even headquarters in Washington forecasts no farther ahead than 30 days."

The records department in Chicago, said, however, the last 26 days have been the driest spring period in Chicago on records running back 100 years, with only .18 of an inch precipitation.

The Illinois Crop Reporting Service in Springfield said last week the winter's precipitation had been only 50 to 80 per cent normal.

Functions of the Cairo weather station, at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, include checking and forecasting river stages, issuing severe weather warnings and local daily forecasts.

750 Boys and Girls Tidy Up Sikeston

by LEO SCHADE

Saturday was Earth Day in Sikeston!

A large group of boys and girls assembled for a project that gave the city a clean look and a forward step against land pollution.

More than 750 boys and girls participated. They were Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and members of the newly organized 4-H club.

Beginning at 9 a.m. the youth picked up more than 750 bags of litter all over the city to all four highways to the city limits.

The youths participating included members from 38 organizations and 80 adult leaders.

Police assisted to assure safety for the youngsters.

After litter bags were filled a fleet of trucks hauled it to the Rodeo grounds where a landfill was dug near the bleachers by Jaycees. The contents were thrown into the fill and covered with dirt and then planted with trees. The idea for the Earth Day came from the 4-H club.

More than 50 boys and girls participated in an arteraft show. Metal and tin art sculptures were shown at the Kingsway Mall Friday and Sunday.

A resolution was received on the Earth Day project "calling attention to the necessity of purifying our natural enviornment, and to promote an interest in the problems facing a community, and for giving the young people an opportunity to show their interest and concern in these environmental problems."

The resolution was read to the Missouri House of Representatives, and a copy sent to Peter Myers Jr., 4-H project chairman, signed by Rep. Tony Heckemeyer of Scott County.

THE GREATEST NUMBER of sacks of litter were picked up by Boy Scout troop 59 on West Malone, beginning at Lewis Furniture company and ending at the west city limits. In charge was Scoutmaster Jerry Hughes and assistant Loy Overby.

It's The Law

Really Mother, Of All The Nerve

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Helen went to a supermarket and handed the manager a long list of items to be sent to her daughter and son-in-law. In doing so, she explained that she was afraid to give "the kids" the money to shop for themselves since she was sure they'd just squander it away.

Without ado, the understanding manager sent the list across town to another store manager with a little note, to wit; "Am enclosing list of items to be delivered. Mother doesn't trust them with the money to shop for themselves. Please deliver."

Unfortunately, not only were the items delivered, but the note was inadvertently delivered as well. And, when Helen's daughter read it, she refused thereafter to have anything to do with her broken-hearted mother.

Distraught, Helen sued the supermarket for damages.

"By writing and delivering that stupid note," she complained in court," the store manager destroyed my relationship with my daughter. Now, when we pass on the street, she looks right through me as if I were the Invisible Lady."

"While we concede that delivering that note wasn't a great act of wisdom," responded the attorneys for the supermarket,"the fact that Helen and her daughter no longer talks isn't our fault. Things must have been rotten in Denmark to start off with."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the supermarket pay Helen for splitting up Helen and her daughter?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that in writing and inadvertently delivering the note, the manager had done nothing that would constitute a legal basis for Helen's collecting damages from the supermarket. It was unfortunately, concluded the judge in effect, just one of those things.

Based upon a 1967 Oregon Supreme Court Decision.

Under Twenty

by KURT LASSEN

To the uninitiated, Alice Cooper might appear to be a girl singer or a female actress. To those in the know, it is a rock group and a male rock group at that! Five male artists turned musicians and showmen have achieved what Alice describes as "third generation rock."

It's a bit disconcerting sitting down to talk to a young man who looks like many other rock group musicians and address him as Alice, but it was somehow managed and as one talks, part of the excitement the group feels begins to catch on.

"We're not really a group as you think of one," Alice Cooper told us. "We're a production, we're a show. We reflect all of the wild, modern things that go on around us. We're as visual as we are a sound because all of us combine the art where we started with the musical scene."

Alice does it quite well, however, and the evolution seems quite natural. "We all grow up in a visual television age, an age where we saw men walking on the moon, and it became very difficult with all of us spending so much time in front of television to draw the line between what is real and what is not real.

"Then," he added, "there were the sounds. The Beatles and rock, hard rock, electronic rock. They all hit our sensibilities and life became a series of sights and sounds that were different from anything that had ever come before."

Alice and his friends; Neal Smith, percussion; Michael Bruce, guitar, piano and organ; Dennis Dunaway, bass, and Glen Buxton, lead guitar, were all artists trying to make it in a painting world. But each was also a musician. Alice painted and sang as a hobby and he and his friends gradually realized that they could best express themselves through the combination of sight and sound.

The result is something like a traveling electric circus "except different." "It isn't just psychedelics set to music," Alice said. "Our show is a visual performance of lights, music, tableaux, movement. It's action-reaction, a sort of semi-controlled reaction. In a way we're a mini-musical extravaganza."

For a group, this bizarre success doesn't come easily. "'A gimmick in a gimmicky world,' they called us. Now we're really rolling. We do the college circuit and the clubs. We particularly like the small clubs because we're there, right there with the audience and we all become part of each other and the reaction is often almost violent."

The group, however, wasn't without recognition from high places. Salvador Dali, feeling the group was not unlike one of his sensational paintings, has offered his "Geopoliticus Child" as the jacket cover fo for his next album.

Frank Perry, after seeing and hearing them, wrote them ino this new motion picture, "Diary of a Mad Housewife."

When the show takes to the road, it is a major operation. The setting up for a performance with both sight and sound is major undertaking Hours and hours have been spent putting the act together and it takes hours to set up for a performance, a performance which is hard to visualize by listening to their albums unless you've seen them in action.

A natural question always asked is why the name "Alice Cooper" for for a group of five musicians? "People are both male and female, biologically," Alice explains. The typical American thinks he is all male but he has to realize he has his feminine side, too. I learned this while studying with a hypnotist who taught me to become three equal parts: male for strength, female for wisdom, and child for faith."

It's a wild, wild, wild, wild world!

The Missouri State Highway Patrol Says:

BE A BETTER DRIVER EVERY DAY

SCARLET AND BLUE

The larger tubular-shaped flowers are those of scarlet sage or red salvia, whichever you prefer to call it. The smaller are those of blue salvia. Either plant is useful.

Nobody is neutral about scarlet sage (red salvia). It's a case of either love or hate. And, oddly, the two reactions are because of the same thing — the flower color.

Gardeners who love it point out how bright and cheery it is and how well it contrasts with evergreens or other foliage plants. The ones who dislike it say that the color is too bright and doesn't "go with" anything.

The people who dote on scarlet sage must be in the majority for certainly millions of plants are grown each year, usually in front of or between evergreens in a house planting. This lone use is a short-sighted one of a valuable plant.

Have you a garden path? Try scarlet sage plants spaced four feet apart along either side and plant any white-flowered petunias between them. Gorgeous! Set groups of 3 or 5 plants 2 feet apart in a flower border and around them plant Petite Yellow marigolds, with pale yellow flowers. Lower still, perhaps for a border, set blue lobelias. Stunning!

When blue salvia is mentioned, the reaction is only love — nobody hates it. This is partly because of color, partly because blue flowers are comparatively scarce and also because blue salvia is not only a good "mixer" but very easy to grow.

Plant seeds where you want flowers and move seedlings that are too close together. In due course of time these will grow into 2½ foot stems with grayish leaves topped with blue (or white or purple). Blue Bedder's blossoms are pale blue, those of Royal Blue are violet-blue. Regal White and Regal Purple have flowers of the colors named.

Publishers File Suit to Block Postage Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Magazines and newspapers have filed suit to halt temporary increases in postal rates which could boost their mailing costs 20 per cent this spring.

Spokesmen for the Magazine Publishers Association (MPA) and American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) said they recognize the need for higher postal rates and postal reform.

"However, we have no other way to get a hearing on either the amount of the increases or the method of assessing them .... " said ANPA President Stanford Smith.

The suit filed in U.S. District Court here Thursday seeks a preliminary injunction barring a proposal by the board of governors of the U.S. Postal Service to increase rates for secondclass mail by an average of 20 per cent in mid-May, first-class mail from 6 to 8 cents and air mail from 10 to 11 cents.

The Postal Service has proposed a 142-per-cent jump in second-class rates over a fiveyear period and a 33-per-cent hike in third-class rates, onefifth to take effect this spring.

The postal reorganization legislation passed by Congress last year provides rate increases be fixed by a five-member independent rate commission, at the suggestion of the board of governors.

Sentence for Payroll Tax Evasions

ST. LOUIS — Edward F. Bierschwal, a Cape Girardeau meat market operator, was sentenced in April, by United States District Judge James H. Meredith to six months imprisonment on each of four counts, to run concurrently.

A four-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury Feb. 12, charged Bierschwal with willful failure to file payroll tax returns for the first, second, third and fourth quarters of 1968. Taxes for these quarters amounted to $5,551.95.

Judge Meridity allowed Bierschwal to remain at liberty on his present bond until May 17, at which time he will surrender to the U.S. marshal to begin serving his sentence.

Bierschwal changed his plea from innocent to guilty April 5, to the four counts.

The case was investigated by agents of the intelligence and audit divisions of the internal revenue service and presented by Robert B. Schneider, assistant to U.S. Attorney Daniel Bartlett, Jr.

AP Writer Ordered out Of Ceylon

Immigration authorities advised Rosenblum his visa would expire April 21, 17 days short of the period for which it had been issued.

The notification gave no reason, but Information Department officials said at a briefing they were not happy with the reporting of The Associated Press and the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Rosenblum arrivedApril 28, the first foreign newspman in after the insurgency erupted, and made a number of trips outside Colombo to see militaryoperations. An American citizen based in Sigapore and Malaysia, he is the first newsman expelled from Ceylon during the crisis.

Safeway Adopts Equal Pay for Equal Experience

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Safeway Stores, Inc., says its male and female clerks will start getting equal pay for equal experience May 2--but not because of pending court action in Oregon.

A union spokesman said the policy change will mean a pay increase of as much as 40 per cent for some women clerks.

Safeway President W. S. Mitchell said the decision to boost the pay scale of female employes was based on a year-long study begun before the Oregon suit was filed.

Safeway, which operates in 28 states from coast to coast, had no estimate of how many employes in its 1,963 stores would be affected by the increase.

A union spokesman said the decision would put the scale for both men and women at about $2.80 per hour.

Cepeda Swings Hot Bat; Gentry Records 1-Hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hitting against Woody Fryman has been no picnic for Orlando Cepeda.

But Sunday it was a feast.

The Atlanta first baseman fed on his long-time nemesis for five hits, including the game winning home run in the 10th inning that carried the Braves past the Phillies 5-4.

"I never hit him so good," said Cepeda. "But it was one of those days where everything falls in and nobody gets you out."

The "nobody' in this case was Fryman, who said he threw the gopher pitch just about where he wanted.

"We tried to jam him,' said Fryman, "it was off the plate good. But he just got in front of it.'

It was just about where Cepeda wanted it, too: "An inside fast ball—about belt high.'

The bundle of hits made it a whale of a three-game series at Veterans Stadium for Cepeda, who has been known to voice his displeasure while playing in Philadelphia.

Cepeda, who once said he didn't like hitting at the Phillies' old park, Connie Mack Stadium, because official scorers were not fair to him, hit a triple in Friday night's opener and a single and home run Saturday.

The San Francisco Giants continued to bomb the Chicago Cubs, taking a doubleheader 5-1 and 8-1 to complete a sweep of their four-game series. In other National League games, the Montreal Expos topped off a three-game sweep of Cincinnati's defending champions with a 3-2, 5-3 double triumph; Houston tripped Los Angeles 86, St. Louis turned back San Diego 4-2 and the New York Mets and Pittsburgh Pirates split a pair. New York won the first 5-2 and Pittsburgh, the second, 2-1.

In the American League, Boston beat Detroit 1-0; Baltimore crushed the New York Yankees 11-6; California clipped Minnesota 5-4; Oakland tripped the Chicago White Sox 11-2 and 6-1; Washington defeated Cleveland 4-0 in the opener of a twin bill and Cleveland took the second, 1-0 and Kansas City and Milwaukee split their doubleheader—Kansas City winning the first, 2-1 and Milwaukee the nightcap, 3-2 in 13 innings.

After an early productive day of four hits in four at-bats and two runs knocked in, Cepeda wasn't thinking of hitting a home run in the 10th.

"Oh, no,' said the broadshouldered slugger, "I just tried to get my bat on the ball."

Cepeda's fourth hit, a runscoring single in the seventh inning, gave the Braves a 4-3 lead. But the Phillies tied it in the ninth on Terry Harmon's bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

Pinch-hitter Frank Johnson struck a three-run double and Bobby Bonds delivered a tworun homer in the first game and rookie catcher Fran Healy drove in four runs with a homer and single in the second in the San Francisco sweep.

The Cubs led 1-0 in the opener when the Giants mounted their game-winning rally in the fourth inning against Milt Pappas. In the first inning of the second game, the Giants rocked rookie Bill Bonham for four runs, including Healy's two-run single. Healy then crashed a two-run homer in the fourth.

Clyde Mashore's basesloaded, pinch-hit single in the seventh inning knocked in two runs in the first game for Montreal, then Rusty Staub gave the Expos their second-game victory with a two-run homer and run-producing double.

Joe Morgan slammed a three-run homer and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly for Houston. The Astros backed winning hurler Jack Billingham with a 15-hit attack, which included a triple by Roger Metzger and doubles by Denis Menke, Bob Watson and Doug Rader.

Morgan's homer in the fifth inning triggered a five-run uprising which chased Dodger starter Claude Osteen.

Pinch-hitter Leron Lee's tie breaking double keyed a tworun rally in the ninth for St. Louis, extending San Diego's losing streak to five games. Ted Sizemore, who walked and took second on a wild pitch, scored on Lee's double to left. Matty Alou then singled home lee for the insurance run.

Gary gentry pitched a onehitter—Roberto Clemente's sixth-inning triple—and Cleon Jones knocked in three runs in New York's opening game success. Willie Stargell delivered a long single to left in the eighth inning of the nightcap to score Richie Hebner with Pittsburgh's winning run in the second game.

Cards Sweep Padre Series

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals pulled out a 4-2 decision with a two-run rally in the ninth over the Padres in San Diego, and the Kansas City Royals split a pair with the Brewers in Milwaukee Sunday.

Kansas City won the first game 2-1 on Paul Schaal's homer in the ninth, and a bases-loaded single by Tommy Harper of the Brewers broke up a second-game deadlock in the 13th inning, 3-2.

Pinch-hitter Leron Lee keyed the clinching rally by the Cards in the ninth with a double that scored the go-ahead run, and Matty Alou singled home the insurance tally. The Padres tied it 2-2 in the eighth on a walk and Clarence Gaston's double.

Joe Torre opened the seventh with a vicious single that caromed off the left knee of Clay Kirby, benching the Padres starter. Torre took second on a passed ball, then put the Cards ahead 2-1 on Ted Sizemore's single.

The Royals tied the first game in the fifth when Fred Patek singled, stole second and scored on Joe Keough's single.

Milwaukee went ahead twice in the nightcap on homers by Bill Voss and Mike Hegan. Kansas City tied the score each time, once in the fourth on a homer by Amos Otis, and again in the seventh on singles by Cookie Rojas and Lou Piniella, an error and a sacrifice fly.

Harper's single off Ted Abernathy with the bases loaded in the 13th scored Ted Savage, one of three walks.

Jim Rooker, 0-2, is scheduled to start for Kansas City at Minnesota today. Jim Kaat, 1-0, is the Twins starter.

St. Louis will pitch Jerry Reuss, 1-1, at San Francisco tonight against Frank Reberger, 1-0.

MU Loses 3-Game Series at I-State

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Colorado moved to first place in the Big Eight baseball standings as the league made good use of its new rule permitting Sunday games.

Because of Friday and Saturday rain-outs, three series were completed Sunday. Record Set

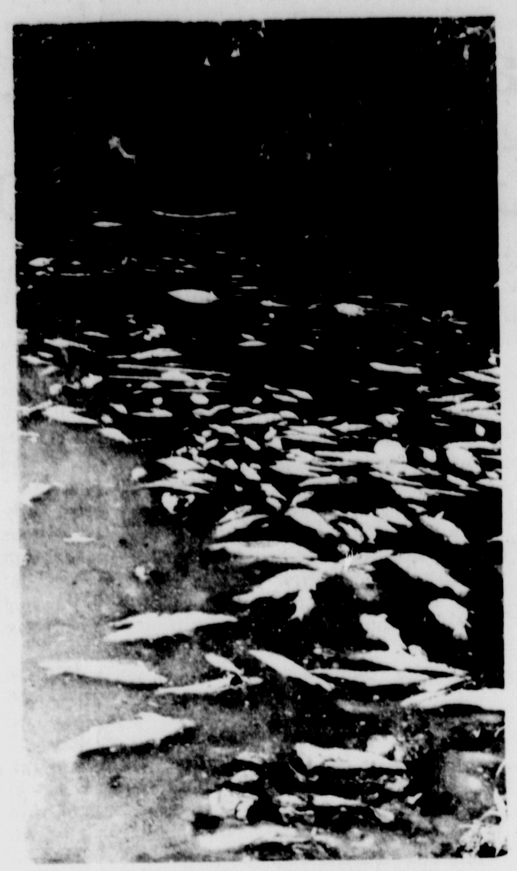
MOSCOW (AP)--Soviet weightlifter Vasily Alexayev set a world record in the super heavyweight division Sunday with a jerk of 508 pounds, Tass reported today.

The Soviet news agency said Alexeyev bettered his own previous record by 1.1 pounds.



THE LITTLE RIVER DRAINAGE DISTRICT has been charged in Cape Girardeau County with killing more than 25,000 fish. The Kill apparently caused by spraying ditches with a herbicide, using oil as a carrier. A kill estimated at 40,000 was reported along a five and a half mile strip of drainage ditch in New Madrid County between Parma and Risco.

Fish Kills Continue

COLUMBIA--There were 29 fish kills in Missouri in 1970. That's the official Department of Conservation box score. More than 650,000 fish killed, 113 miles of stream and 16 acres of ponds affected.

Now, 1971 is chipping in with its ante. One of two new kills is 40,000 on five and a half miles of a drainage ditch in New Madrid County between Parma and Risco.

The kill apparently caused by spraying four miles of the ditch with a herbicide, using oil as a carrier.

Fish killed, included bass, bluegills, crappie, pickerel and other species.

At the same time 10 miles of drainage ditch in Cape Girardeau and Stoddard Counties were sprayed. An estimated 25,000 fish died.

"That really is a conservative estimate," says Frank Ryck, water quality biologist for the Department of Conservation. "They'd just finished spraying about 8-10 miles of ditch and fish were just starting to die."

The causes from the 1970 fish kills in Missouri read like a drab catalog of Mankind's pollution problems: "sewage... pesticides...acid coal drainage...feedlot...industrial waste...sulphuric acid...low dissolved oxygen...herbicide...oil...unknown..."

Biggest kill in 1970 was the well-publicized Crooked Creek incident in Lincoln County where dumping of pesticides resulted in 349,000 dead fish.

Other big fish kills included 85,000 in Blackberry Creek in Jasper County from drainage from a coal pile; 62,000 in Cedar Creek on the Boone-Callaway Counties line from acid drainage from an old coal field; 50,000 in River des Peres in St. Louis County from sewage; and 45,000 in Tebo Creek in Henry County from coal field drainage.

Some 20,000 fish died below Stockton Dam on Sac River because of low oxygen water going through the dam. A similar situation happened below Table Rock Dam in Lake Taneycomo last autumn.

No dead trout were found in Taneycomo, but dead trout tend not to float as readily as other fish. Fishing success plunged to near zero during the low oxygen crisis in Taneycomo. Growth rates also dropped dramatically.

Turkey Season Begins Thursday

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's 12th wild turkey season in modern times opens Thursday morning at 5 a.m. It will last for 10 half days, until noon May 2.

The season is three days longer than last year and may draw some complaint from conservationists. But Dunbar Robb, chief of the game section in the Conservation Department, said he thought Missouri's growing wild turkey flocks can stand the added pressure.

The season will be open this year in 44 counties with three counties — Benton, Maries and Oregon — added this year.

Robb said if the peak of the gobbling occurs during the 10day period hunters should have a better than average season. The past two seasons, with the weather staying cool, did not produce the best hunting.

Still the record was achieved last year with 1,607 legal gobblers taken by a total of 10,073 hunters. The previous record kill was in 1968 when 1,270 male wild turkeys were bagged.

Robb said he hoped the continuing animosity between sportsmen and Ozarks landowners will not have a bad effect on this spring's hunt.

The rift has been widening for four years as some spotsmen tried to get a scenic rivers bill enacted to protect stretches of some of the more bautiful streams.

Landowners protested that such legislation would take at least partial control of their land without any renumeration. Thousands of acres of land have been posted by the landowners against any hunting or fishing.

But Robb said he believed the turkey hunters who might want to hunt those areas have been sympathetic to the landowners' stand and so will be welcomed.

Thousands of acres in the Clark and Mark Twain National Forest will be open to hunters, as well.

A farmer hunting on his own land does not need the special $7.80 turkey permit but all other hunters need the permit as well as a Missouri hunting license.

Any turkey bagged must be checked with a conservation department agent by 3 p.m. of the day it is bagged in the same county or an adjacent county.

These are the open counties this year:

Adair, Barry, Benton, Bollinger, Butler, Callaway, Camden, Carter, Cedar, Crawford, Dent, Douglas, Frankling, Gasconade, Hickory, Howell, Iron, Jefferson Madison, Maries, McDonald, Miller, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, New Madrid, Oregon, Osage, Ozark, Perry, Phelps, Pulaski, Reynolds, Shannon, St. Clair, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, Stone, Sullivan, Taney, Texas, Warren, Washington and Wayne.

Turkey Hunters Honor

JEFFERSON CITY--Successful Missouri turkey hunters during the April 22-May 2 season can get recognition in addition to the backslapping of their friends.

Field and Stream Magazine is offering a Wild Turkey Honor Badge for those hunters who bag a turkey of 16 pounds or more--which would include hundreds of Missourians.

Figures show that the average adult gobbler bagged in Missouri weighs 21 pounds, while a juvenile will weight about 14-15 pounds.

Address inquiries to: Honor Badges, Field and Stream, 383 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Lovelace Promoted

ST. LOUIS (AP)--Bob Harlan has resigned as public relations director of the St. Louis baseball Cardinals to become assistant general manager of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, the Cardinals announced.

Harlan will be replaced by Jerry Lovelace, who has been director of group sales for the past two seasons.

Harlan's resignation is effective May 15 and he will assume his new post as assistant to former Missouri football coach Dan Devine June 1.

Harlan has been Cardinal public relations director for the past three years.

Lovelace, 29, was an assistant in the public relations office for three years before taking the sales position.

"We are sorry to lose Bob Harlan," Redbird General Manager Bing Devine said. "But we wish him success in what will be a more challenging position with our good friend, Dan Devine.

"I am sure Jerry Lovelace's background and experience qualify him well for his new responsibilities," Devine said.

Lovelace is a 1963 graduate of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau.

Horse Show Set May 9

Don't laugh! In many areas of the country it's a popular way to spend a day. This is the time of the year that the horse show season is starting full swing. Kids brush-up their backyard ponies - and horsemen, who have grown fat and lazy during the cold months, have begun tuning-up their equally fat and lazy horses for the season.

A new big-show entry in the area, and one that is due to become an early favorite, is the SEMO Kiwanis Horse Show at the Arena in Cape Girardeau. The Cape Girardeau Kiwanians, working with the Southeast Missouri Charity Horse Show Association, will stage a first class show on May 9, with trophies, ribbons and money in the offing, and there will be classes for most types of horses.

The afternoon show, scheduled to start at 1 p.m., will have 13 classes, including two for ponies, four for Walking Horses, Two for Saddle horses, three pleasure classes - English, western and country - and two gymkhana events.

DEXTER— The Tri-County Mental Health Association, which serves Mississippi, Scott and Stoddard counties , showed its appreciation to the First Baptist church for sponsoring a traveling mental health clinic monthly.

Mrs. Charles Petty, Essex, president of the organization, gave a plague to Rev. Marshall Dark , pastor, who accepted it on behalf of the congregation.

The plaque has on it the symbol of the mental health bell. Such a bell was cast in 1953 for the National Association for Mental Health from the chains, handcuffs and other metal restraints formerly used to bind mental patients.

Helms Says CIA Role Vital to World Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency told the nation's editors Wednesday that the CIA's role is as vital to the keeping of world peace as it is to provide information vital to the national defense.

In his first public speech as head of the CIA, Helms told the annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors that "a number of wellplaced and courageous Russians" had provided information on Soviet missile systems which, along with U-2 photography, was of great help to the United States at the time of the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

He also said that, without an effective intelligence system, a U.S. agreement with Russia to limit nuclear armaments would be "unthinkable."

U.S. intelligence, he said, will h ave "a major and vital role" i any strategic arms limitations agreement.

Helms said the CIA has no police, subpoena, or law enforcement powers, or any domestic security functions.

He said he hoped by his accounting of CIA st aims and functions to dispel criticism that his agency is an invisible government, engaged in provocative covert activities in conflict with the ideals of a free society—and other assertions, Helms said, which are "either vicious or just plain silly."

Helms said the CIA, in addition to such obvious responsibilities as measuring the thermonuclear threat to U.S. security, the current intentions of the Soviet, and the capabilities of Communist China to produce an intercontinental ballistic missile, must also equip the United States as a world power to deal with a vast variety of smaller conflicts and controversies around the globe.

"I would like to stress that accurate intelligence is equally essential to the planning and implementation of actions to forestall conflict," Helms said.

CIA efforts to gain foreign intelligence in this country have generated strong criticism, Helms said. But the CIA, he said, intends to continue interviewing private U.S. citizens who may have acquired useful foreign information while traveling abroad, and to continue trying to hire competent young graduate students for its staff.

MISSOURI LEGISLATORS REBELLING AGAINST FEDERAL WELFARE PROGRAMS

JEFFERSON CITY — The day may soon come when the Missouri legislature will say "no" to major federal welfare programs.

It has already come in a small way in the Senate. Last month, Senators refused to enact a law to bring the state into compliance with federal home nursing care standards for Medicaid recipients.

The growing rebellion has at least two main sources.

First, many lawmakers believe participation in costly federal-state welfare packages is helping to bankrupt the state. Missouri's welfare costs have nearly double in the last five years. Much of the increase can be traced to matching fund programs, initiated at the federal level.

But the issue which seems to be stirring more lawmakers toward open rebellion is one of state independence. A long with federal money come regulations, which often only blow up the already inflated welfare burden.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare already has announced two states will not receive federal welfare funds unless they get into line.

By turning down a $374,000 per year program last month, the Senate may have placed Missouri in the same position. The state will receive an estimated $195 million in federal welfare funds next year, to go along with almost $119 million of its own, if the legislature approves the recommendations of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Sen. J. F. Patterson (D-Caruthersville, Senate president pro tem, has urged his colleagues to stop submitting to what he terms the "demands of the Department of Wealth, Education and Hellfire."

Even Sen. William Cason, (D-Clinton), a long-time welfare advocate, is becoming more cautious. He admits that the time may come, perhaps even this year, that Missouri lawmakers will have to stand up to federal officials so the state can meet its commitments in education, health and other vital programs.

Sen. Noel Cox (R-Ozark) said he had never voted against a welfare measure until last month. But he said when federal standards give welfare recipients more benefits than middle income families can afford, "it is time to say no."

Another major complaint is that too often the state starts a federally matched program, only to find that in a few years the federal money is cut down or wiped out, leaving the state holding the bag for the entire program.

An example is the school lunch program, once funded entirely by federal money. This year, the state is being asked to help finance the program. Although state support was written into the federal law which established the program, few legislators knew about it when they accepted the federal money.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham (D-Columbia) has asked for a full-scale investigation of welfare laws and possible welfare fraud in Missouri, a move which has drawn little response.

Few legislators have questioned the administration of State Welfare director Proctor Carter, who has been hailed on the Senate floor as "one of the best welfare administrators in the country."

The legislature has given Carter immense powers. He can cut off or cut back any program when funds run low. Because of this, the state has never spent more than it appropriated for welfare. In other states, directors have gone millions beyond their budgets and put their states in perilous financial condition.

Missouri is also one of few states whose welfare recipients are, almost without exception, unable to work. Of the 300,000 Missourians receiving assistance, most are dependent children, blind, totally and permanently disabled or unable to work for other medical reasons.

But the dissatisfaction with the federal welfare situation has reached the point where senators have threatened to use their congressional redistricting power to get Missouri congressmen to act.

There has been an implied and expressed threat that the state simply will not go along with federal regulations, if it means putting the remaining state programs in jeopardy.

Such action would be extremely risky, says Paul Williams, legal aide to the governor. In almost 35 years, not one state welfare program has been denied federal funds, he says. "But one of these days, the boys in Washington are going to call our bluff. And then we'll be in real trouble.

A complete federal takeover of welfare funding would satisfy most of the legislative leaders. Senate majority leader Cason says, "If the federal government can tell us how to run our programs and who to hire, why shouldn't it pay the bill?" That solution has the backing of Hearnes and a growing number of lawmakers in Jefferson City.

It also appears to have major support in Washington,although key committee leaders are expected to block it this year.

Throughout his passive resistance movement, Mohandas Gandhi practiced the concept of "Ahimsa," which embraced doing good even to the evildoer. The World Almanac notes Gandhi professed: "Complete nonviolence is complete absence of ill will against all that lives . . . It is pure Love. I read it in the Hindu scriptures, in the Bible, in the Koran."

Good Water Costlier in San Angelo Than Gasoline

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Mother Nature has played some cruel jokes on this West Texas city.

It is only perversely funny to some when a dry lakebed burns, the city runs a pipeline to a dry reservoir, and a gallon of good water costs more than a gallon of gasoline.

There were few chuckles here when the Texas Legislature, in a lighter moment, toyed with legislation authorizing the city to build a pipeline to the moon.

And only a handful of people stampeded out to purchase bumper stickers proclaiming the city of 64,000 the "Pipeline Capital of Texas."

The community pays $73,000 annually for 3,000 acre-feet of water it isn't getting from one reservoir, and $240,000 yearly for a pipeline it isn't using.

According to unofficial estimates, the city pays between $675,000 and $800,000 annually in water supply retirement debts on four lakes.

Only the smallest of the four, Lake Nasworthy, contains an appreciable amount of moisture.

Citizens distressed with the quality of water have turned, in vast numbers, to bottled water for drinking and cooking.

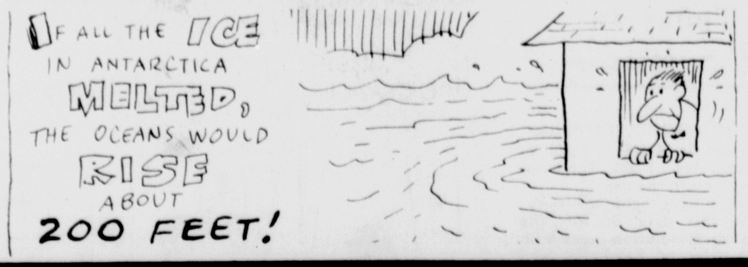
Mystic-Ozarka reports that bottled water sales have increased 85 per cent since last October. At $1.90 a five-gallon container, that's 38 cents a gallon.

Since last October, less than half an inch of rain has fallen. This, coupled with an absence of heavy rains in recent years, dried up one lake and depleted the water supply in others. The dry lake bed burned.

To circumvent this drought and potential future dry spells, the city has contracted for underground sources.

It intends to spend $8 million to $10 million to acquire and funnel ground water 55 miles to San Angelo.

More than 3,000 wells have been dug within the city since January 1970.



First Britain to China Call in 22 Years Completed

LONDON (AP) — The first telephone call from Britain to China in 22 years got through today but it took 3½ hours from the time the Chinese opened the circuit.

A British Broadcasting Corp. journalist, William Hardcastle, placed a three-minute call to George Barrass, a second secretary at the British mission in Peking. Reception was nearly perfect.

The Post Office—which runs Britain's telephones—tinkered with radio transmission equipment badly affected by atmospherics.

The move, coming shortly after Peking raised the bamboo curtain to admit American, British and Canadian table tennis teams to China, was seen as another sign that Mao's Communists want to improve relations with the capitalist West.

Telephone service between the United States and Peking reopened Monday night.

Nixon Calls Current Welfare System Monumental Failure

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — President Nixon said today the United States cannot tolerate a welfare system "under which working people can be made to feel like fools by those who will not work."

"It is incredible that we have allowed a system of laws under which one person can be penalized for doing an honest day's work and another person can be rewarded for doing nothing," Nixon said in a speech prepared for the Republican Governors Conference.

The President denounced the current welfare system as "a monumental failure," and urged support for his own family assistance proposal, before Congress again after failing to win passage last year. Nixon said under the current system "the person on welfare can often have a higher income than his neighbor who holds a lowpaying job.

"Tragically, these situations often exist in the same neighborhood, side by side in the same apartment houses—and the effect is corrosive," Nixon said. "It creates bitterness on the part of the worker. In the end, I suspect, it causes resignation—and we end up with another person on welfare ....

"The fact is that the welfare establishment and system in the United States is a monumental failure. It makes the taxpayer furious. It makes the welfare recipient bitter, and it inflicts the distillation of all this anger and bitterness to the children who will inherit this land. It is a disgrace to the American spirit."

Nixon said he does not think any job is menial if it puts bread on the table, "provides for your children and lets you look every one else in the eye.

He said scrubbing floors or emptying bedpans is not enjoyable work but there is as much dignity in it as in any job to be done in this country "including my own."

Nixon chose for his hard-sell bid for welfare reform an audience of GOP governors beset by rising state welfare costs.

He singled out for praise the state level efforts of Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, who has been critical of the administration's family assistance plan, and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

He said he wanted to commend them especially for "biting a bullet the entire country is going to have to bite if we are going to bring the financial—and worse, the human— costs of the present welfare system under control.

"I do not think we can tolerate a system under which working people can be made to feel like fools by those who will not work," Nixon said. "To the contrary, I think those who refuse to register for work and accept work or training should be ineligible for welfare payments, and we have written such a stipulation into our welfare reform proposal.

The President's plan being considered by the House Ways and Means Committee calls for a $1,600 minimum yearly income come for a family of four plus food stamps.

Soviets Orbit 'Station'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government put a new satellite called Salute into earth orbit today. The Russians called it a "scientific station" but said nothing about any men being aboard.

If the satellite is unmanned, it could be joined by a manned spacecraft that would link up. There have been rumors for a week that the Soviets were preparing for a manned shot, and West Germany's Bochum observatory said it expects another launching late tonight.

The goal of the Soviet manned space program is the establishment of orbital space laboratories, but space officials have announced no date for this.

Bochum observatory reported that it recorded the launch of Salute at 3:40 a.m.—9:40 p.m. Sunday EST—and said the craft was using a radio frequency reserved in the past for manned space flights.

The Soviet government usually refers to unmanned space shots as "automatic," but the first announcements of Salute did not use this word.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the mission of the station was "the adjustment of elements of the design and onboard systems, carrying out scientific studies and investigations in cosmic flight." It said the station's high point from the earth was 137.9 miles and the low point 124.2 miles—and orbit "close to that which was calculated."

The time of the orbit is 88.5 minutes and its angle of inclination to the equator is 51.6 degrees, Tass said.

"The on-board systems, equipment and scientific apparatus of the station are functioning normally,' the report said. "The coordination-computing center is processing incoming information."

The last manned Soviet space flight was Soyuz 9, launched on June 1, 1970. It carried cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastyanov to a space endurance record, circling the earth for 17 days, 16 hours, and 59 minutes.

The purpose of the flight, according to Soviet scientists, was to test man's ability in an extended state of weightlessness and to practice manual navigation techniques.

The Soviets were the first to put a man into space.

They orbited Yuri A. Gagarin on April 12, 1961, and just last week celebrated the 10th anniversary of that mission with an official celebration in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses.

Since losing the race to land a man on the moon to the Americans in 1969, the Soviets have emphasized their preference for unmanned space missions.

Earth Week Activities Take Various Forms

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Man, the endangered species, stands alone today in the primate building of the Atlanta, Ga., zoo. He is surrounded by garbage.

In New York, workers spilled out of skyscrapers to discover 15 blocks of normally congested Madison Avenue devoid of autos as scientists measured the level of atmospheric contaminants.

Both are Earth Week demonstrations designed to point at the many ways in which man poisons his own environment.

Students in Des Moines, Iowa, hoped to collect 80 tons of waste paper Saturday to kick off Earth Week. By Sunday, they had gathered over 200 tons.

A weekend fund-raising rally in Hartford, Conn., collected an estimated $15,000 for the Connecticut Earth Action Group. The rally was described by a policeman as the "happiest, cleanest and best' the had ever seen.

The Atlanta display was among the most dramatic. A live man sits by himself among piles of trash in the building otherwise occupied by apes and other primates.

Curator Vernon Kisling said the man-surrounded-by-garbage demonstration is an effort to dramatize the danger man and other animals face because of garbage and pollution.

The teach-ins, seminars and demonstrations will take place throughout the nation's second annual Earth Week in hopes of emphasizing ways each individual can contribute to a cleaner, greener,healthier planet.

Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken said in a proclamation "Progress has been made, but we must now shift our emphasis from consciousness of the problem to an active, accelerated effort to preserve the environment."

Three recycling centers open in Rhode Island in an effort to get consumers to return their waste paper and cans for reuse by industry.

Cleanup campaigns, with volunteers sweeping trash from parks and roadsides, highlight Earth Week in North Dakota. And grand Forks Mayor Hugo Magnuson has urged all citizens to "focus on solutions to such problems as conservation, environmental management, ecology and population."

Malone Light Poles Struck

The light poles on East Malone took a beating this weekend according to police.

Police report a two-car accident on East Malone Sunday night when a car driven by Olivel Dumay of Sikeston struck a second car driven by Terri Lynn Donoho of 321 Hardin. The Dumay car went out of control hitting a light pole.

A one-car accident occurred Saturday night when a car driven by Robert Gardner of 1605 East Kathleen went out of control on East Malone and hit a light pole. Gardner was arrested on a charge of careless driving.

East Malone was the scene of a two-car accident Saturday night when a car driven by Billie Briggs of 707 Greer turned into the path of a vehicle driven by Daniel Griffith of 412 Kendall.

Griffith was going east on Malone and Briggs was turning from Malone into Pine Street. Briggs was taken to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital and released. Briggs was charged with careless driving.

Larry Curtner of Morehouse was charged with driving while intoxicated following a head-on collision Saturday night.

Police report that Curtner struck a car driven by Woodrow Sills of Sikeston. The accident occurred at the intersection of East Malone and Kingshighway.

Curtner was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for injuries.

Bone Broken in Scuffle With Officer

Charles D. Blancett of 222 Illinois is in the city jail this morning with a broken bone in his right hand and charged with assaulting a police officer, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. His arrest followed a Saturday night confrontation with police at the Park-A-Lot Drive In on East Malone.

The incident occurred when police made a routine check of the Park-A-Lot Saturday night and found two youths in possession of liquor. The two unidentified youths were taken to the city jail, charged with possession, and later returned to their car at the drive-in.

Patrolman Odis Applewhite returned the youths to their car and as he was leaving, police said Blancett and another man standing in the parking lot began using profane language to protest the arrests. Applewhite stopped his patrol car to ask the two not to use profane language.

Blancett then was accused by police of making a racial slur against Applewhite and the patrolman placed him under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Blancett was reported to have refused to get into the patrol car and when Applewhite radioed for assistance, police charged Blancett hit him on the head with a beer can. Applewhite charged that Blancett also grabbed him by the collar and attempted to choke him.

The two men wrestled and Applewhite was able to gain control and use his night stick to subdue Blancett. The patrolman struck Blancett on the hand.

When assistance came Blancett was taken to the city jail and then to Missouri Delta Community Hospital where he was treated for a broken bone.

Police report that Blancett then refused to pay the bill for the medical treatment.

Blancett is being held on $500 bond.

Major Problem Solutions Elude State Legislators

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Legislature comes back to work today with none of its major problems near solution.

Unless one house or the other does a lot of skipping around on the heavy calendars of pending bills the weighty legislation isn't likely to be reached this week.

The House has an awesome 375 bills or more on its calendar and the Senate has perhaps 150.

Hundreds of state revenue employes planned to crowd the Senate galleries late today to make clear they want some action taken on a bill to extend the present income tax increase beyond next January. They hope that out of it will come some promised pay raises.

The director of revenue, James E. Schaffner, said he did not plan to interfere with the demonstration so long as no worktime is lost. The employes indicated they would go to the Senate galleries after they get off work.

The Senate Appropriations Committee is holding the House-passed money bills until some indication is had that the necessary revenue will be coming in.

Drug Abuse To Be Aired At Meeting

A month-old high school anti-drug organization will hold its first public meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. in the high school cafetorium.

The groups was organized to discourage the use and abuse of drugs and has for the past month launched a campaign against drugs in the schools and the community.

The group started with 35 members and has grown to 148.

Showing of a film entitled "The Trip Back" will begin Thursday's meeting and will be followed by discussion groups of teenagers and adults.

The anti-drug group was formed following discussions in a personal analysis class.

Addiction High Among GIs

SAIGON (AP) -- Two U.S. congressmen said today that heroin addiction among American troops in Vietnam is of epidemic proportions.

They blamed corrupt Vietnamese officials for part of the problem and said the ready availability of drugs makes the situation almost impossible for the U.S. Command to control.

The two congressmen are Rep. Morgan Murphy, D-Ill., and Rep. Robert H. Steele, rconn. The House Foreign Affairs Committee sent them to Southeast Asia to look into the drug problem. They spent three days in Vietnam, visited Laos and attended a narcotics conference in Bangkok.

Steele said figures provided by the U.S. Command indicated that 10 to 15 per cent of the American troops in Vietnam—about 30,000 to 45,000 men—are using high grade heroin which is between 94 and 97 per cent pure.

Steele blamed the extensive use of heroin in part on the "widespread and mistaken belief that it is not addictive if snorted or smoked" and that it doesn't have the odor and bulk of marijuana.

In 1970, he continued, between 59 and 90 GIs died from overdoses of heroin.

Murphy said he and Steele were approached several times by Vietnamese heroin dealers working the streets of downtown Saigon, a vial of heroin roughly a fourth of a gram, sells for $1.80 to 42.10 and the average addict requires two vials a day.

Both congressmen said the South Vietnamese government has not done enough about the problem and that it has just started realizing the extent of it, expecially among young Vietnamese.

"We have every reason to believe that corruption among public officials is an important factor in smuggling heroin to our troops in Vietnam," said Steele. "The time is long overdue when our allies should recognize the extent of the problem.'

Before their departure for Hong Kong, the two congressmen conferred with Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who told them he had received numerous complaints of heroin addiction among young Vietnamese.

"Ky told us if he was put in charge of the problem that he could clean it up in two months," said Steele.

Steele said he and Murphy were "especially concerned by the use of Vietnamese and Laotian military aircraft in smuggling. There is little evidence that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are involved in smuggling.'

Fifty per cent of the heroin is believed to come from Laos and the rest from Hong Kong and Thailand, he added.

Two speakers from a stereo tape player were later recovered near Petty Street, but Booker was unable to identify them as the ones taken from his car.

Maglyn Nelson of 204 Selma told police that a matching set of yellow gold rings was taken from her home since April 4. The rings were valued at $150.

Help Too Late For Boy Caught In Snowstorm

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)--A 14-year-old youth caught in a snow storm was found alive late Sunday high on a Sandia mountain trail, but died before rescuers could get him down.

The boy, Carl Gustafson of Albuquerque was with Robert Carter, 16, of Albuquerque on a hike up La Luz trail to 10,000-feet Sandia Crest when the storm caught them and young Gustafson became exhausted.

Carter went on to the top, nearly a mile away, and reached the tramway restaurant near the crest shortly after 6 p.m. A tramway operator hiked down the trail and found Gustafson, but couldn't get him up the trail alone and went back to the crest for more help.

Three men took blankets and capes down to the youth, who was described as incoherent and "in bad shape."

The storm dropped more than six inches of snow on the mountain during the afternoon and evening, while temperatures dropped to near 20 degrees.

TAKING THE AX TO THE HATCH ACT

The history of civilization is largely the story of struggle between the "ins" and the "outs"; between the haves and the have-nots; between centralized, government power and individual, "people power." Seldom in history has there ever been such vast, massive government power as that which exists right now in Washington, D. C. Unlike the Soviet Union, however, where there are virtually no restraints against the power of the government in Moscow, much of the power of government in the United States is restricted and confined by law. Were it not so, the people of this country would have no liberty at all.

One of the most important restraints now standing in the way of unlimited bureaucratic control in Washington is the Corrupt Practices Act of 1939, commonly known as the Hatch Act. Briefly put, the Hatch Act prohibits the soliciting or receiving of any political contribution by one Federal employee to another, and it prohibits the use of official authority or influence of government employees for the purpose of interfering with an election or nomination for office.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which has filed suit against the Hatch Act, claims that the measure "discriminates" against government workers. What the Act really does is prohibit government employees from soliciting, collecting, receiving or disbursing financial contributions for political purposes. It does not prohibit voluntary contributions, so long as they are not made to another Federal officer or employee.

Similarly, the act prohibits Federal employees from taking an active part in the management of political campaigns. It does not prevent Federal employees from expressing their opinions on any or all political subjects and candidates. Thus, they may wear a political button or badge, but they cannot distribute campaign literature, badges or buttons.

There is nothing in the Hatch Act which interferes with the political rights of government workers. What it does do, is prevent the government employee, by virtue of his power and influence within the government, from bringing political pressure to bear on others.

These are important restraints, and they should be maintained at all costs. Otherwise, the power of centralized government will be increased a hundred fold - possibly more. And power in the people through the grassroots of America will be reduced by the same proportion.

Lack of trust is injurious to government. If the populace is skeptical of office holders or the proposals they sanction — such as jail improvements, tax increases, etc. — it will not take long for the mechanics of government to come to a grinding halt.

Such is the case in Scott County, and why not? Why should the eiectorate endorse proposals made by persons they cannot trust? As things now stand the county's entire body of elected officials is subject to doubt because of a situation that remains to be cleared or openly aired to the people.

It is unfortunate that a few politicians can cast doubtful shadows over an entire government body, but such is the case in the much belabored issue that has been left swirling over the collector's office since Aubrey Lee Michael's resignation Jan. 6, 1970.

If I was an elected official doing my job properly and honestly, I would be raising nine kinds of hell with prosecuting attorney Thomas Gilmore to take the necessary steps to make issues clear to the electorate and give assurance that corrective action will be taken against those who have violated the people's trust and laws.

Let us examine in a common sense manner just one aspect of the case -- the reported Dec. 8, 1969, armed robbery when deputy tax collector J. W. Shuffit said he was accosted by a lone gunman in the courthouse.

After more than a year's lapse of time it remains unclear as to whether actually there was an armed robbery. Shuffit says there was. Authorities apparently remain unconvinced. If authorities have reason to suspect Shuffit's story, they owe it to the people to come out with it. And what about the dark cloud that's been left hanging over Shuffit? Such a thing must be hard to live with.

It may be that time (a thing of which Gilmore seems to have an abundant supply) will make clear the issues. But the prosecutor may find that time can turn against him. He may, in fact, come to the time when voters put a man in office who will make the answers available.

INTERNATIONAL RESCUE COMMITTEE NEEDS HELP

Last fall Sharon Decker, a 10th-grade student at Cameron County High School in Emporium, Pa., read her history class a newspaper article, about the work of the International Rescue Committee.

After discussing the worldwide refugee problem, the class decided to stop talking and try to do something -- to sponsor bringing a refugee family to Emporium. They asked their teacher, Max Narby, to call IRC headquarters in New York for information, and the IRC immediately alerted its caseworkers in Europe.

In January, Stefan Nowak (not his real name), his wife and 10-year-old son arrived in New York enroute to the little community in the heart of the Allegheny Mountains. They had gone from Communist Poland Yugoslavia as tourists and from there escaped to Italy where they were sent to refugee camp.

Emporium high school students found an apartment for the Nowak family, furnished it, arranged for English lessons and found Nowak, a metal worker and auto mechanic, a job with a local automobile agency. A townwide fund-raising campaign was started to obtain funds for the final resettlement and integration of the family into the community until they become self-supporting.

The Nowaks were only three of more than 8,000 refugees who fled Communist East Europe last year. Close to 3,000 of these were resettled overseas, 1,900 in the United States. But some 5,100 were still on the IRC caseload at the beginning of 1971.

Unlike most organizations making annual reports at this time of year, the International Rescue Committee regrets to say that it had more customers than ever in 1970 -- more, in fact, than in any other year since it was established in 1933. Even the crisis following the 1956 Hungarian revolution did not equal 1970 in terms of the massive number of refugees assisted. In addition to those in Europe, it aided more than 11,000 Cuban refugees entering the United States through Miami and elsewhere. Many of them were children sent away by their parents before they reached 15 -- the draft age in Cuba.

Despite intense surveillance by Red Chinese authorities, more than 10,000 refugees managed to escape mainland China to Hong Kong. IRC gave material assistance to 1,300 of them. During a single three-week period last October, 300 Chinese attempted to swim the three-mile-wide bay separating the mainland from Hong Kong. Many of them drowned.

In all, about 125,000 refugees on every continent benefitted directly from IRC programs in 1970.

Business promises to be just as good -- and bad -- in 1971.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

It would help relieve the monotony of office and factory life if every one individually and at his own choice took a day off now and then because he was feeling good rather than feeling ill. It could be called Personal Mental Health Day.

A woman is never at her best if she tries to carry on a conversation while eating an apple.

Women are generally grouchier when they wake up than men, and many of them hate to smile before noon. Some dislike even being spoken to until after they have eaten.

A wife looking back over her 30-year marriage told her husband: "The worst cross I've had to bear during all those years is seeing you wake up in a good mood and coming humming to the breakfast table.'

The shoptalk of newspapermen is the most interesting of any professional group because it is the most varied; that of bankers is the dullest because it is about a banal commodity—money.

The value of a thing depends to a great extend on its usefulness. If weeds were found to be both edible and tasty, soon everyone would be complaining about the way the price of weeds was going up.

American manners are getting more genteel. How long has it been since you sat next to a guy in a diner and watched him sip his too-hot coffee from a saucer because it cooled quicker?

A father feels amused if he reads an unfinished love letter left in a typewriter by his teenage son; but if the mother reads it she feels sad, and may even be moved to tears.

One of the odities of life is the fact that the fellow who does the least work in an office is also the one who wastes the most paper towels in the washroom while drying his face and hands.

What may kill us is sometimes easier to live with than something that merely annoys us. This is why you are permitted to smoke cigarettes on a commercial plane but the hostess gives you the no-no sign if you light up a cigar.

Even though we hardly hear anything worth listening to these days, we can't dismiss our ears as obsolete. We still need them to anchor our spectacles on—in the hope that sooner or later we may see something worth looking at.

The thing a farmboy needs to learn most at an agricultural college today isn't what to grow and when to plant it but how to fill out a federal government form without breaking the family computer.

The good old days were those when people thought the best way to end a war was to win it, not just widen it.

TWO KINDS OF CRITICS

Finding fault is wholesome -- if it is the prelude to improvement. The greatest fault - finders are often the greatest builders. Looking at yesterday's creations with a critical eye, they find ways to do a better job tomorrow. Their kind of faultfinding is different than that of the cynics who never get farther than criticizing the productive efforts of others.

such faultifiners as this will have a hard time getting their teeth -- or claws -- into the message of a late nationwide advertisement of the investor - owned electric light and power companies. While the detractors have blamed these companies for everything in the book from blackouts and high power rates to polluting the atmosphere, the record as set forth in the advertisement is worth reading. Among other things, it says, "... did you realize there would be no inflation if the price of everything else you buy behaved like the price of electricity? Why didn't the price of electricity skyrocket like other things? Didn't the wages we pay go up? Yes. And didn't our total tax bill and the cost of plants, lines, and equipment go up as well? Of course. Then why is the price of electricity so low?"

The advertisement than goes on to point out that the price of power has been held down as a result of the expenditure of billions of dollars for new equipment which produces and delivers electricity more economically. This, coupled with the fact that people use more electricity, enables the investor - owned companies to use expanded facilities more efficiently. Their story is simply the story of the free enterprise system that so many of our "advanced" thinkers hold up to scorn -- a system that is unique to the United States and the basis of opportunity and freedom for all our people.

A man with a shiny bald head attended a country square dance. After several dances and drinks the man retired to an adjoining room, where the women had left their babies for the evening.

YOUTH CRUSADES AGAINST LITTERBUGS

A Klamath Falls, Oregon, youth, 16 -year - old high school junior Bill Manley, has launched his own fight against litter in his community. He sought and received permission from the Klamath Falls City Council to cleanup the city. He has enlisted other high school boys and girls to assist him on weekends in gathering roadside debris, cleaning vacant lots and removing waste from the shores of Klamath Lake, adjacent to the city. According to a press report, "The work is being done without pay. He told county and city officials he is just interested in keeping things clean."

Young Mr. Manley, by stimulating the interest of youth in an anti - litterbug campaign around his community, could well start a national youth movement for cleaner cities. After all, it is the youth who will be living for many decades with the mess that litterbugs are creating around us today. The effort of this high school student and his helpers deserves the widest publicity and encouragement of fellow citizens.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM UPHELD

No government has the right to compel individuals to act against their religious beliefs, and government should safeguard the right of parents to care for their children. Yet the Amish community in our country has had a running battle with the government over their belief that public schooling is morally harmful to their children.

Finally, the Amish have won a significant victory in this battle. The Wisconsin State Supreme Court has ruled that the application of compulsory education laws to Amish children in unconstitutional and that these children cannot be forced to attend a public high school.

This decision is eminently sound. In the first place, the primary responsibility for education must remain with a child's parents; otherwise he becomes simply a ward of the state.

Further, as the Court recognized, the right to uphold one's religious convictions is constitutionally guaranteed. Therefore a state law cannot force an Amish parent to send his child to public schools since the parent believes that this will seriously damage the child's religious formation.

The Amish have clearly shown that the education they provide within their community produces outstanding citizens. There are no Amish on welfare, no unemployed Amish, and no crime in the Amish community. This is largely because the Amish have recognized the organic unity among family, education, religion and community. Forcing these children into a public high school would have destroyed this unity and made the children susceptible to all the problems they now avoid. The Amish should be congratulated for their stout defense of a basic principle of our nation: the right to freedom of religion. HLH

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— The scandals we have uncovered in the Army's $1.1 billion commissary system were no surprise to the top brass, who a year ago received a 63-page report detailing how commissaries around the world had been looted by employees, customers, shippers and even friendly governments.

The brass characteristically suppressed the report to prevent the taxpayers from finding out how their money has been squandered. When we asked about the Army Comptrolier General's findings, one colonel implied the report didn't even exist. Our request for a copy was turned down brusquely by the Defense Department.

Nevertheless, we have obtained an unauthorized copy, entitled "Worldwide Review of Army Commissaries," dated March 15, 1970. Page after page, it speels out a sordid story of mismanagement, waste and outright thievery. Here are the highlights:

The study accuses "every cashier" in the Saigon commissary of punching up phony figures and pocketing the difference. Customers were allowed to run up a staggering credit of $2 million with no hope of collecting the deliquent accounts.

The Bangkok commissary overstocked items, including 500,000 unneeded pounds of boneless beef, that were allowed to rot, were eaten by rats or were sold for a song. The losses, set at $5,256 in the first quarter of fiscal 1968, soared to a breathtaking $300,000 in one quarter of 1970. The Royal Thai government allegedly also pilfered, lost or broke $80,000 worth of goods.

--UNDER THE COUNTER--

Throughout the commissary system, employees have been selling goods under the counter for their own profit. The report cites unidentified mess hall workers who would pick up huge cans of coffee at $11 apiece, sell five cans on the black market and deliver five to the mess hall. Some thieves were kept on the payroll after they had been discovered.

Stealing from commissaries apparently has become a favorite sport. At Fort Dix, N.J., despite good warehouse security, $9,000 worth of coffee and $4,000 in canned hams disappeared in a single night. Some of the thievery occurred before the goods ever reached the commissaries. The auditors found 109 cases of meat were missing when a ship reached Inchon, Korea.

In many commissaries, deliquent customers were given credit after they had paid with "an endless cycle of bad checks." The Army auditors also found the accounting so bad in commissaries that millions in petty pilferage hadn't been caught. The sorry accounting continues to this day.

Totally untrained officials helped to run commissaries in Bangkok, Saigon and Seoul, also at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and Fort Richardson, Alaska. Their incompetence resulted in losses five times greater than found in well-managed commissaries.

In Japan two commissary annexes were renovated at a cost of $45,000 "although sufficient justification existed to continue operation of either store."

The Army auditors sometimes got the run-around from commissary officials. They made appointment after appointment with an Army contract officer in Thailand, for example, to find out why a $250,000 storage contract went to a contractor who already owed $75.000 for failing to comply with an earlier contract. Each time the contract officer failed to show up.

In some instances, generals loaded up commissary shelves with their own favorite foods. The choice delectables went unpurchased by the wives of servicemen with less luxurious tastes. Even the secret auditors' reports, however, discreetly omitted the names of the offending generals.

On the whole, commissary officers seem to have a cavalier attitude toward the taxpayers' funds.

--WASHINGTON WHIRL--

Calley's Conversion--Intimates tell us Lt. William Calley has turned to religion. He has held lengthy talks with several Army chaplains in an attempt to make his peace with God. These intimates say Calley has persuaded himself that God won't hold him responsible for carrying out what he believed to be military orders at My Lai.

Cooper-Church--Senators John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Ida., whose celebrated resolution prohibits the U.S. from sending ground troops into Cambodia or Laos, are now in the final drafting stages of a new resolution. This would restrict U.S. military action in Indochina to fighting only when American troops were in imminent danger of attack. Church wants to send the resolution to the White House for the President's signature. Cooper, however, feels this would put the President on the spot. Nixon would either have to kowtow to the Senate, argues Cooper, or appear to be against ending the war.

Black Army--Col. Hassan Jeru-Ahman, the glib promoter who has wangled $523,000 out of the federal government to subsidize a private black army, has been in league with the neo-Nazis. By Hassan's own admission, he accepted at least $1,000 from neo-Nazi Willis Carto and used one of Carto's henchmen, Doug Clee, as a fund raiser. In 1967, Hassan wrote a crude anti-Semitic tract and as late as 1970, his men distributed copies on the street. All this has so outraged Jason Silverman of the Anti-Defamation League that he has written an angry salvo of letters to the Health, Education, and Welfare Department objecting to the $523,000 grant. Hassan denies he is anti-Semitic. "The Jewish community has given me more help than anyone," he told us.

Long Strike Scene: Nixon to Permit Steel Labor And Management to Fight It Out Alone.

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON--Not since an olden editor said go east young man to Henry (Dr. Livingston, I presume?) Stanley, has a travel agent been helpful in a crisis crunch. Now I've come upon such an agent who appears to predict flatly there well be a national steel strike this summer.

In the Bethlehem Steel Workers Union publication, the "09 Express," there appeared an enterprising advertisement, placed by the Union Travel Service of Baltimore, Md. In a recent edition of this publication, dispatched to some 27,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America (USWA) (AFL-CIO) employed at Bethlehem's Sparrows Point plant, the nation's largest, the travel service says clairvoyantly:

"When the mill shuts down take a Caribbean cruise. August 16 to 23 and August 24 to 31. Eight days, seven nights..."

And then the delights of Miami and Nassau and the blue waters race through the copy.

And this sounds like a sound prediction from Baltimore's asphalt jungle. There is little doubt in truly informed circles that the massive steel union led by I. W. "Abe" Abel, the quiet man who pulled scores of thousands of mill hands from the steel factories during the height of World War II, will walk out in the early morning of August 1.

This national strike -- or even selective stoppages -- would cripple much of the economy. What then, does President Nixon plan to do?

That's the multi-billion dollar question. A steel strike would be a long one. It could run through Christmas right into 1972 as a similar stoppage ran through the end of 1959 into 1960 -- also a national election year.

In an effort to pressure both sides, the President could threaten to buy steel abroad if there was a strike and so slash orders and work which would affect both sides. But the government buys only five per cent of the industry's products -- and that goes from ships to tin cans. At most, this comes to a total of a billion dollars and the basic steel purchases affected would be far less. So whom would Mr. Nixon frighten?

Or the President could -- and probably will -- call on both sides to extend the contract three months or so from the August 1 expiration date. This would only heat up the rank and file which wants its cost of living clause now, right now -- or yesterday, in fact.

Or the President could say the health and safety of the nation is threatened and cool it all off with an 80-day Taft-Hartley injuntion. Which would merely delay the deluge. Obviously, the companies and the union locals will not come into the ark two by two.

He could issue a construction trades type of Executive Order freezing wages and prices in the steel industry. But this would bring the pickets out faster than long hairs at a rock festival.

Or the President could put all government agencies at the service of both sides to mediate, meditate and cajole. But both sides have already told the government to stay out. It can be prrsumed that this was the message union chief Abel delivered to Secretary of Labor Jim Hodgson during a friendly two-hour junch in the latter's office on April 6.

What will President Nixon do? He has one other alternative -- if he doesn't freeze the entire economy, which he won't. He could let both sides clobber each other. He could let them fight it out all winter on cold picket lines and in fireless mile-long mills.

The odds at this moment are that he will let them fight it out. The next inflation alert will flare about July 1 --and it probably will light up the building and construction field. It may have some reference to the steel industry -- but not much.

The President will do some jawboning. But he and his executive "assistant president" George Shultz do not believe in using Taft-Hartley to cool things. Do there will be a battle.

What the public doesn't realize == and Messrs. Nixon and Shultz do -- is that, unfortunately, the last came first into the spotlight. There are four steel union negotiations in all -- can, aluminum, copper and finally basic "steel" itself. The April 13 inflation alert already has fingered the can agreements -- which, incidentally, if followed by the other three industries will result in a $2.1 billion cash wage increase alone for the entire field during the next three years. That's considerably more than the industry makes.

Now the aluminum industry is negotiating with the union. When this is over two sectors will be locked in on the can formula. Thencomes copper -- with a June 30 expiration date. When this is tied up, there will bave been three can-type contracts with basic steel coming up.

At that point "Abe" Abel, pressured by his rank and file, will strike unless he gets what his union got in the other three pacts.

If President Nixon were going to move he would have to act now. But he's not. And the steel industry, any simple audit will show, cannot take the can formula without an increase in prices. Ane how can the country take a price increase?

The competition is too sharp. American steel producers pay $3.88 more in wages and benefits per hour than do the Japanese -- and $3.31 more than the Germans and the rest of the Common Market (with slight variations).

And another factor making bargaining tough is the agreement by the Lukens Steel Company, Coatesville, Pa., albeit a small one, to shut down its mills for a two-week holiday each summer. The young members especially are fighting for this demand.

So perhaps the Baltimore travel agent doesn't really have a crystall ball. Just a good nose for news.

Certain Pajamas Are Flammable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission advised consumers Friday that certain inexpensive women's pajamas imported from Taiwan by the F.W. Woolworth Co. are dangerously flammable.

Approximately 1,000 dozen of the pajamas were imported by Woolworth and put on the market in April and May of 1970, the FTC said.

"Tests of the pajamas have shown them to be dangerously flammable," the FTC said. "Every effort is being made to remove them from the market.'

Identified by the label as "Primstyle" pajamas, the garments originally sold for $3.65 and were later reduced to $2.99, the FTC said.

The label also identifies the garments as being made in Taiwan and says the materials are cotton, 35 per cent, and phytrel, 65 per cent. The FTC, however, said tests have shown that the material actually consists of Cotton and rayon.

The pajamas are white with floral designs in orange-yellow or blue-lavender.

Ann Landers

Lover . . . . Wake Up Before It's Too Late

Dear Ann Landers: As a graduate student who has spent the last five years with pot and non-pot smoking friends, I would like to respond to the student who thought grass brought out the best in her. She recommended it for those who have a hard time "opening up to others."

I tried pot when I was a freshman at the University of Illinois. I swore off after four pot parties. Every time I smoked I became involved in ridiculous arguments about inane subjects. I ended up depressed and remorseful.

I do not sit in judgment of those who smoke. I take no position on the legality or the morality of pot smoking. All I know is that it was no good for me and I will never smoke again. But because I am not a smoker, and I often find myself in the company of those who are, I am in a position to make some fairly objective observations -- and I have done so. They are as follows: Heavy smokers, be they law students, med students, architect students or philosophy majors, are much more pleasant, more alert, and they communicate better when they are not smoking. The notion that pot brings out hidden talent or brilliance is a myth. What pot does is remove the inhibitions, cloud the judgment, make blabbermouths out of some people and tie the tongues of others. ----Been There

Dear Been: Your letter supports the theories I have heard expressed by the best experts in the field -- others who have also Been There. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: A very attractive, intelligent, soft-spoken woman just left my home. She is my lover's wife. It was our first meeting and I am still in a state of shock. His description of her was a far cry from the person I met.

For the past two years he has been describing his wife as a hopeless neurotic, a semi-invalid, unreasonable, hyper-critical, violently jealous, etc. I was astonished to see a woman who is in excellent health, cultured, and refined. She had come to tell me I could have her husband if I wanted him. Imagine my surprise, after he had told me she would fight a divorce to her dying day, and that our only hope was to wait until he could afford to have her institutionalized.

I learned she was his third wife(news to me), that he had had numerous affairs, but his wife was willing to keep the marriage together in the hope that eventually he would outgrow the chasing around. He is a wonderful father to their three children which she said made up for a great many other things.

I thanked her for coming, and when I closed the door behind her I also closed the door on HIM. As I sit her I wonder how I could have been such a fool. I feel used and unclean. How many single women who are cheating with married men are buying the same line I brought? If anyone out there is in my shoes, for God's sake wake up before it's too late to pick up the pieces and make a decent life for yourself. -----Comes The Dawn

Dear Dawn: I can add nothing to your letter except my thanks for having written it. I'm happy for you -- and sad for the heel's next victim whom he probably has already selected.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Sned for Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's And Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

THE QUANTITY BUYER THAT ALWAYS GIVES YOU EVERYDAY LOW PRICES

Greenhouse

By Paul Flowers

In my schizophrenic way, I am torn between by devotion to eternal truth and my affection for my militant - activist buddies, but I must yield to the dominant urge and lay bare a stark fact of life, namely, that "pig," as an epithet for a law enforcement officer, is no linguistic breakthrough, but dates back at least 160 years.

I get this from a revived edition of Capt. Francis Grose's "Dictionary of the Vulgar Tongue," edited by Robert Cromie and published by Follett Publishing Co. at $1.95, in paper. The subtitle proclaims it "a dictionary of buckish slang, university wit, and pickpocket eloquence," and the dedication reads: "The canting academy, or villanies discovered, wherein are shewn the mysterious and villanous practices of that wicked crew, commonly known as hectors, trepanners, gilts & with several new catches and songs, also a complete canting dictionary, both of old words, such as are now most in use. A book very necessary (to be known but not practiced) for all people."

"Pig" is defined as a police officer; a common expression was "floor the pig and bold," which meant "knock down the officer and run away."

This may occasion some disappointment among activists - militants who probably thought they created the term, but into each life must come some disillusionment.

Grose's dictionary discloses that the sheriff's picture frame is a gallows or pillory.

A few others are:

Caluliflower, a clergyman's wig.

Bear, one who contracts to deliver a certain quantity or sum of stock, on a future day, at stated price ... selling what he has not got.

Bull, one who buys what he has not the money to pay for.

Finger post, a parson, so called because he points out the way to others, where he has never been himself.

Irish apricots, potatoes. (In Dixie we know grits as Georgia ice cream, and balck - eye peas as Georgia strawberries.)

Muzzle, a beard.

Robinson Plans to Serve out Term

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — State Treasurer William E.Robinson, cleared by a circuit court jury Thursday of a charge he used his office for private gain, says he probably will serve out his present term.

But he says he doesn't know what his political future will be or whether he will try for a second term as treasurer.

He was a leader in the 1969-70 campaign to win adoption of an amendment to the constitution letting a treasurer run for reelection. It was adopted by the voters in August, 1970.

And that campaign was a key to his defense in the trial. He admitted receiving $2,500 from James B. Crismon, former Bonne Terre, Mo. bank president, but said it was a contribution toward the amendment campaign.

Crismon testified it was a payoff for having received state deposits in the past and for assurance of future deposits.

Robinson, a Democrat, told newsmen after the trial his "nightmare" showed him who his friends were and who his political enemies were as well.

He would not comment on the earlier suggestion from Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes that he should resign from the treasurer's office and go into court as a private citizen.

Hearnes said he was sure that Robinson and his family are greatly relieved but he didn't think that the acquittal had cleared the air for the Democratic party.

He said public officials like himself and Robinson have it a little different than other citizens. "Any politician is guilty until proven innocent, rather than innocent until proven guilty," Hearnes said.

The governor said he thought Robinson's attorneys felt that way, too, and worked to clear Robinson.

He said the general public has been reading all the charges for many months and he did not know whether the court decision would suddenly change their minds.

Meanwhile a resolution is pending in the Missouri House calling for an investigation to decide whether the House should consider drafting of impeachment articles against Robinson.

Co-sponsors of the resolution are Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, and majority leader Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis.

Rabbitt was quoted in St.Louis as saying they would have to review the situation Wednesday. Godfrey said he thought the resolution probably would be abandoned.

Four Treated

Four were treated Thursday in the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Dewey Bickfor, in car accident; Juanita Bufords, Bell City, car accident; Teresa Ann Garner, East Prairie, injured right hand at play; Clinton Byrant, injured back of head in fall.

TORONTO (AP) — The law should be changed to make wives equally liable with husbands for the payment of alimony, a Canadian authority on family law said recently.

Prof. Julien D. Payne of the University of Western Ontario said the law, which has always regarded men as primarily responsible for paying support, should be brought in line with "legal and economic emancipation of married women."

New Type Program For Dietitians

COLUMBIA— A new type of program for educating dietitians so they will meet professional requirements of the American Dietetic Association will be inaugurated at the University of Missouri July 1 under a five-year grant of $333,435 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The program will be used by the department of nutrition and dietetics of the medical center in conjunction with the food and nutrition section of the school of home economics.

Until the coordinated program is effected, dietetic students from Missouri have served in post-graduate internships or alternate experience for nine months before qualifying as dietitians. Under the new program they will become professional dietitians upon earning bachelor of science degrees.

Two new areas of specialization will be open to students planning to become dietitians. One will be in medical dietetics for clinical dietitians and one in food systems management for administrative dietitians. Students may enter the programs at the end of their sophomore year.

The traditional program which requires post-graduate internship will continue to be offered for students who can not fit into the new program or who prefer the general program.

Plan Devised To Stave off Mass Layoffs

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An emergency plan to stave off massive layoffs at Missouri state mental institutions has been devised by superintendents and administrators.

The program was necessitated by a 15 per cent budget reduction during April, May and June, said Dr. George A. Ulett, state mental health director, Wednesday.

He said 2,160 employes at the hospitals have offered to take up to 10 days leave without pay if necessary to make up the deficit.

Institutions will accept voluntary leaves without pay immediately if it can be done without disturbing patient care, Ulett said.

He said he plans to ask Thursday for two weeks leave without pay but will continue to work and he expects other administrative employes to do the same.

Hospital administrators agreed to reduce purchases, not to fill any vacancies and to effect other economies. Programs will be held to a minimum.

Ulett said the move is a gamble in hope that state collections increase in June so that those taking leave now can get their full pay.

He said it appears most institutions have enough volunteers to prevent any mass layoffs.

New Subdivision For Dexter

DEXTER— Work is underway on a 44-lot subdivision in west Dexter, a project of a newly-formed Dexter corporation, Westside Enterprises, Inc.

Principal leaders in the development are Rod O'Donnell and Joe E. Weber, Dexter businessmen.

Westside Subdivision is located on One Mile Road, west and just north of the Market Street intersection with One Mile Road.

The subdivision, fully approved by FHA, will be for persons with moderate income. People qualifying will pay $200 down including all closing costs, with interest rates as low as one per cent.

O'Donnell explained that the development is "for the working man in the moderate income range and it's a chance for him to own his own home, the fulfillment of a lifelong ambition of many families."

The homes will be built from as many as five different plans, with different front variations, such as different roof lines and front window arrangements.

The homes will range in size from two-bedroom to four-bedroom, and will have a brick front, carport and storage area. Other home features include carpeting in most rooms, central heat and optional central air conditiong, built-in range and factory-built cabinets.

Work should be started on three homes by May 1, according to the developers.

"All building will be done by local contracters, as far as possible," Weber points out. "We feel this is an important addition to Dexter, both for the prospective home owner and for local builders."

All of the lots except two are at least 70 by 140 feet, and will be seeded after the home is built.

Other features of the Westside Subdivision include complete underground utilities and telephone lines, along with very adequate fire protection and water flow and sewer lines, that are being installed this week.

Streets will be laid soon, using strict standards.

O'Donnell and Weber both point out that applications are now being taken for the housing subdivision and any interested person may contact Westside Realty for more information.

Panama Found To Have Risen Out of Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deep-sea-drilling oceanographers today reported bizarre evidence that the Isthmus of Panama literally rose out of the ocean millions of years ago to form a permanent barrier between the Caribbean and the Pacific.

The evidence, culled from ages-old mud and silt tapped from the ocean bed in the latest exploit of the famed government-sponsored drilling vessel Glomar Challenger, is that:

The present isthmus actually is an area of elevated ocean floor that was forced to rise above sea level by pressure exerted by fragments of a gigantic break-away submarine mountain ridge. The latter had evidently drifted some 400 miles after pulling away from the rest of the mountain, the scientists said.

Doctors Tjeerd H. van Andel and G. Ross Heath of Oregon State University's department of Oceanography told about it in a report to the annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union.

They said this new explanation on the formation of the Isthmus-thus closing off a once-open passage between the oceans—constituted the foremost of a number of significant findings obtained during the latest phase of the two-year-old Deep Sea Drilling Project sponsored by the National science Foundation and managed by the Scripps Institution of Oceanography. The latter is located at the University of California, San Diego.

How do you grow Amiben™-clean beans in a low rainfall area?

When you're out to utilize every drop of rain, everything you do is geared to conserve soil moisture and at the same time protect the structure of your soil.

Instead of double discing to incorporate a pre-plant herbicide—which can risk soil moisture loss and working the soil too fine—a growing number of farmers now apply Amiben to the soil surface and do their "incorporating" with a rotary hoe immediately after planting.

You will find that it's a good practice to use the rotary hoe any time, every time you:
1—use Amiben in low rainfall areas,
2—plant into marginal soil moisture and rainfall doesn't follow in 3-5 days, 3—apply Amiben after beans have been planted.
Farmers agree Amiben is today's most effective soybean herbicide. When rainfall goes against you, use the rotary hoe to start Amiben working.

You gain today's best grass and weed control even where rainfall is scarce. You avoid the double discing that goes with pre-plant herbicides. And you take a firm step toward soil and moisture conservation on your farm.

Food Stamp Changes Would Open Door More to Low-Income Families

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration hopes to put into effect by fall a sweet and sour blend of food-stamp regulations opening the door more widely to low-income families and shutting it on indigents and hippies.

The proposed rules, a followup to a new food-stamp law passed by Congress late last year, were announced Thursday by the Agriculture Department.

Asst. Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng told newsmen the most far-reaching feature is a national income-eligibility standard for operating the foodstamp program uniformly in all states.

Each state welfare agency at present can determine the limit a family may earn before it is cut off from food-stamp eligibility. A family of four in South Carolina, for example, is limited to a take-home pay of $180 a month before stamp qualification is ended.

The proposed rule will allow the same family, anywhere in the United States, to earn up to $360 amonth and still be eligible for food stamps, the coupons giving poor people a bonus advantage at food stores.

The eligibility standard was described by Lyng as having tremendous impact on the vast food-stamp program.

Only three states, Alaska, New Jersey and New York, now have earnings limits equal to or larger than the $360 per month proposed in the new rules.

The remainder of the states have cutoffs less than the pending regulations would permit. Officials said the effect would be to allow more persons into the food-stamp program.

But Lyng said he did not have an estimate on how many additional persons the liberalization might bring into the food-stamp program or how much it might cost.

The current fiscal year, ending June 30, calls for $1.54 billion for food-stamp expenditures. Nixon budget experts say $2 billion is needed next fiscal year.

About 10.2 million persons at last count were in the stamp program. These are in 45 states and 1,976 of the nation's 3,129 counties.

In addition to food stamps, the Agriculture Department operates a direct commodity-distribution program. All but nine counties in the country are served by one or both of the programs.

The new rules, carrying out congressional orders, also crack down on nonworking family members and college students who cannot prove they are in need. Commune arrangements involving nonrelated persons are barred.

Federal regulations now allow food stamps for any household as long as it meets local welfare requirements. The new rules say that household members under 60 years of age must be blood relatives of linked by marriage.

"That is pretty significant," Lyng said. "This eliminates communes."

The proposed rules also spell out congressional insistence that all able-bodies adults in a food-stamp family register for jobs. Exceptions include mothers with dependent children under 18 years.

Lyng predicted states will be prepared to carry out the new rules by late September.

Editors Explore Need of Panel to Oversee Ethics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Editors are stepping carefully as they explore whether some sort of grievance committee or American press council is needed to oversee newspaper ethics.

"Our problem, it seems to me, is certainly not merely one of public relations," says Erwin D. Canham, editor-in-chief of the Christian Science Monitor.

"It is one of the long-range role of newspapers at a time and in a world which needs honest and accurate information, and independent and courageous expression of opinion," he told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Wednesday.

"I think we must hold and strengthen—perhaps restore—public confidence in our capacity to fulfill the principles to which we are committed," said Canham.

An ASNE panel which he headed "concluded there is certainly a need for more responsible and conscientious professional performance by newspapers," Canham added.

That panel, he said, decided most grievance problems "can be met by a more intelligent, more responsible performance on the part of individual newspapers."

Instead of recommending ASNE set up a press council or grievance-handling group as national machinery to deal with complaints against its member newspapers, the panel proposed an experiment.

As approved by society directors, the ASNE study group is prepared for "a kind of very informal dry run," to see what might have happened had a press council or grievance committee been created to deal with specific cases, Canham said.

ASNE President Newbold Noyes Jr., editor of Washington's Evening Star, said: "There is, to me, something repugnant about the idea that we as a Society should gang up on an individual editor whose concept of what is best for his newspaper or his readers differs from that of a select committee or even a majority of the rest of us, Noyes said.

Fighting Dirty to Keep Your Job

ART BUCHWALD
In The Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — The trouble with most business administration schools is that they teach you everything about business except how to keep your job when a company starts to lay off people during an economy drive.

"The reason they don't teach you how to survive during an economy wave," said my friend Wholesworthy, who has lived through every pink slip crisis in his company for 20 years, "is that the only way to keep your job during a personnel reduction is to fight dirty. And schools don't want to admit you have to fight dirty to stay in business."

"Give me an example," I said.

"All right, suppose you are working as an executive for the Soft-Serve Tennis Ball Co. The word is out that there is going to be a 15 per cent across-the-board cut in jobs. You don't sit back and wait to see if you're in the 15 per cent. You act immediately.

"YOU GO to see Croton, the vice president in charge of personnel, and you say 'If you have to fire someone in my department, Mr. Croton, I would prefer it be me rather than O'Toole. You see, O'Toole has had some serious problems and that is why he hasn't been able to function for the past six months.'

"Croton will reply 'Problems. What problems?'

" 'His drinking, sir. When O'Toole first came here he never touched a drop. Then he fell apart. But it wasn't his fault. You'd have taken to drink too if you had been under the pressure he's faced lately.'

" 'Pressure? What kind of pressure?'

" 'Well, sir. O'Toole's a friend of mine and that's why I hope I'm not violating a confidence. The pressure came mainly from his gambling. O'Toole started losing heavily to the bookies and they threatened to tell his wife about the woman O'Toole was keeping if he didn't pay his debts.'

" 'O'Toole was gambling and keeping a woman and he's got a drinking problem and you want me to keep him on the pay roll?' Croton will say.

" 'We all make mistakes, Mr. Croton,' you protest. 'As soon as O'Toole straightens out his financial affairs and makes up his mind whether he's going to get rid of his wife or his mistress, he'll be a great addition to the company.'

Woman to White House Conference

DEXTER -- Mrs. Frances Vinson will leave Sunday to attend the Little White House Conference on children and youth at Estes Park, Colorado and sometime during the next week President Richard M. Nixon will meet with the group.

Mrs. Vinson was selected by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes in January of 1969 for this honor and since that time has attended meetings throughoutSoutheast Missouri, attended a three state conference in Tulsa, Okla., and is now going to represent Southeast Missouri at the Little White House Conference. These conferences are sponsored every ten years by Presidents of the United States for meeting with youth.

Mrs. Vinson will be accompanied to St. Louis by her husband. Gary, and her mother, Mrs. Frank Seeburger, where she will join approximately 50 other young people who will fly to Colorado.

During the past year a group called the TASK force was formed within the young people selected for this honor andMrs. Vinson has worked with a special medical committee. She is a certified dental assistant.

Youth from 14-22 will attend the conference from all 50 states plus Puerto Rico, it was learned. For each teenager attending an adult will be there also to work with the group.

In addition to working toward this goal with committees and attending meetings since her appointment, She has been active in 4-H work and through this joined a group for a tour of Washington, D.C.

Drought Predicted

CAIRO, ILL. (AP)--A small dark cloud on the horizon?

Cairo's weatherman says we're on the verge of a major drought on the Great Plains.

Haydn Fox, meteorolist at the National Weather Service station said Thursday he bases his prediction on a 20-year recurrence of drought since before the turn of the century.

And this is the year for it to begin, he added.

Fox said the drought area would extend from North Dakota south to Oklahoma, east to the Mississippi River, and north through Illinois and Wisconsin. Precipitation would be, he estimated, one-fourth to one-half normal.

In Chicago, a Weather Service spokesman said, "That's only his personal opinion. We don't make such forecasts. Even headquarters in Washington forecasts no farther ahead than 30 days."

The records department in Chicago, said, however, the last 26 days have been the driest spring period in Chicago on records running back 100 years, with only .18 of an inch precipitation.

The Illinois Crop Reporting Service in Springfield said last week the winter's precipitation had been only 50 to 80 per cent normal.

Functions of the Cairo weather station, at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, include checking and forecasting river stages, issuing severe weather warnings and local daily forecasts.

750 Boys and Girls Tidy Up Sikeston

by LEO SCHADE

Saturday was Earth Day in Sikeston!

A large group of boys and girls assembled for a project that gave the city a clean look and a forward step against land pollution.

More than 750 boys and girls participated. They were Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and members of the newly organized 4-H club.

Beginning at 9 a.m. the youth picked up more than 750 bags of litter all over the city to all four highways to the city limits.

The youths participating included members from 38 organizations and 80 adult leaders.

Police assisted to assure safety for the youngsters.

After litter bags were filled a fleet of trucks hauled it to the Rodeo grounds where a landfill was dug near the bleachers by Jaycees. The contents were thrown into the fill and covered with dirt and then planted with trees. The idea for the Earth Day came from the 4-H club.

More than 50 boys and girls participated in an artcraft show. Metal and tin art sculptures were shown at the Kingsway Mall Friday and Sunday.

A resolution was received on the Earth Day project "calling attention to the necessity of purifying our natural enviornment, and to promote an interest in the problems facing a community, and for giving the young people an opportunity to show their interest and concern in these environmental problems."

The resolution was read to the Missouri House of Representatives, and a copy sent to Peter Myers Jr., 4-H project chairman, signed by Rep. Tony Heckemeyer of Scott County.

THE GREATEST NUMBER of sacks of litter were picked up by Boy Scout troop 59 on West Malone, beginning at Lewis Furniture company and ending at the west city limits. In charge was Scoutmaster Jerry Hughes and assistant Loy Overby.

Under Twenty

by KURT LASSEN

To the uninitiated, Alice Cooper might appear to be a girl singer or a female actress. To those in the know, it is a rock group and a male rock group at that! Five male artists turned musicians and showmen have achieved what Alice describes as "third generation rock."

It's a bit disconcerting sitting down to talk to a young man who looks like many other rock group musicians and address him as Alice, but it was somehow managed and as one talks, part of the excitement the group feels begins to catch on.

"We're not really a group as you think of one," Alice Cooper told us. "We're a production, we're a show. We reflect all of the wild, modern things that go on around us. We're as visual as we are a sound because all of us combine the art where we started with the musical scene."

Alice does it quite well, however, and the evolution seems quite natural. "We all grow up in a visual television age, an age where we saw men walking on the moon, and it became very difficult with all of us spending so much time in front of television to draw the line between what is real and what is not real.

"Then," he added, "there were the sounds. The Beatles and rock, hard rock, electronic rock. They all hit our sensibilities and life became a series of sights and sounds that were different from anything that had ever come before."

Alice and his friends; Neal Smith, percussion; Michael Bruce, guitar, piano and organ; Dennis Dunaway, bass, and Glen Buxton, lead guitar, were all artists trying to make it in a painting world. But each was also a musician. Alice painted and sang as a hobby and he and his friends gradually realized that they could best express themselves through the combination of sight and sound.

The result is something like a traveling electric circus "except different." "It isn't just psychedelics set to music," Alice said. "Our show is a visual performance of lights, music, tableaux, movement. It's action-reaction, a sort of semi-controlled reaction. In a way we're a mini-musical extravaganza."

For a group, this bizarre success doesn't come easily. "'A gimmick in a gimmicky world,' they called us. Now we're really rolling. We do the college circuit and the clubs. We particularly like the small clubs because we're there, right there with the audience and we all become part of each other and the reaction is often almost violent."

The group, however, wasn't without recognition from high places. Salvador Dali, feeling the group was not unlike one of his sensational paintings, has offered his "Geopoliticus Child" as the jacket cover fo for his next album.

Frank Perry, after seeing and hearing them, wrote them ino this new motion picture, "Diary of a Mad Housewife."

When the show takes to the road, it is a major operation. The setting up for a performance with both sight and sound is major undertaking Hours and hours have been spent putting the act together and it takes hours to set up for a performance, a performance which is hard to visualize by listening to their albums unless you've seen them in action.

A natural question always asked is why the name "Alice Cooper" for for a group of five musicians? "People are both male and female, biologically," Alice explains. The typical American thinks he is all male but he has to realize he has his feminine side, too. I learned this while studying with a hypnotist who taught me to become three equal parts: male for strength, female for wisdom, and child for faith."

It's a wild, wild, wild, wild world!

It's The Law

Really Mother, Of All The Nerve

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Helen went to a supermarket and handed the manager a long list of items to be sent to her daughter and son-in-law. In doing so, she explained that she was afraid to give "the kids" the money to shop for themselves since she was sure they'd just squander it away.

Without ado, the understanding manager sent the list across town to another store manager with a little note, to wit; "Am enclosing list of items to be delivered. Mother doesn't trust them with the money to shop for themselves. Please deliver."

Unfortunately, not only were the items delivered, but the note was inadvertently delivered as well. And, when Helen's daughter read it, she refused thereafter to have anything to do with her broken-hearted mother.

Distraught, Helen sued the supermarket for damages.

"By writing and delivering that stupid note," she complained in court," the store manager destroyed my relationship with my daughter. Now, when we pass on the street, she looks right through me as if I were the Invisible Lady."

"While we concede that delivering that note wasn't a great act of wisdom," responded the attorneys for the supermarket,"the fact that Helen and her daughter no longer talks isn't our fault. Things must have been rotten in Denmark to start off with."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the supermarket pay Helen for splitting up Helen and her daughter?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that in writing and inadvertently delivering the note, the manager had done nothing that would constitute a legal basis for Helen's collecting damages from the supermarket. It was unfortunately, concluded the judge in effect, just one of those things.

Based upon a 1967 Oregon Supreme Court Decision.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol Says:
BE A BETTER DRIVER EVERY DAY

SCARLET AND BLUE

The larger tubular-shaped flowers are those of scarlet sage or red salvia, whichever you prefer to call it. The smaller are those of blue salvia. Either plant is useful.

Nobody is neutral about scarlet sage (red salvia). It's a case of either love or hate. And, oddly, the two reactions are because of the same thing — the flower color.

Gardeners who love it point out how bright and cheery it is and how well it contrasts with evergreens or other foliage plants. The ones who dislike it say that the color is too bright and doesn't "go with" anything.

The people who dote on scarlet sage must be in the majority for certainly millions of plants are grown each year, usually in front of or between evergreens in a house planting. This lone use is a short-sighted one of a valuable plant.

Have you a garden path? Try scarlet sage plants spaced four feet apart along either side and plant any white-flowered petunias between them. Gorgeous! Set groups of 3 or 5 plants 2 feet apart in a flower border and around them plant Petite Yellow marigolds, with pale yellow flowers. Lower still, perhaps for a border, set blue lobelias. Stunning!

When blue salvia is mentioned, the reaction is only love — nobody hates it. This is partly because of color, partly because blue flowers are comparatively scarce and also because blue salvia is not only a good "mixer" but very easy to grow.

Plant seeds where you want flowers and move seedlings that are too close together. In due course of time these will grow into 2½ foot stems with grayish leaves topped with blue (or white or purple). Blue Bedder's blossoms are pale blue, those of Royal Blue are violet-blue. Regal White and Regal Purple have flowers of the colors named.

GM reported 168,078 cars were sold in the nine-day period, up 55 per cent over the 108,107 of a year ago and topping the mark of 133,405 set in 1965.

Mack W. Worden, vice president in charge of GM's marketing staff, said the sales were helped along by incentive programs in the Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Buick divisions.

Publishers File Suit to Block Postage Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Magazines and newspapers have filed suit to halt temporary increases in postal rates which could boost their mailing costs 20 per cent this spring.

Spokesmen for the Magazine Publishers Association (MPA) and American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) said they recognize the need for higher postal rates and postal reform.

"However, we have no other way to get a hearing on either the amount of the increases or the method of assessing them .... " said ANPA President Stanford Smith.

The suit filed in U.S. District Court here Thursday seeks a preliminary injunction barring a proposal by the board of governors of the U.S. Postal Service to increase rates for secondclass mail by an average of 20 per cent in mid-May, first-class mail from 6 to 8 cents and air mail from 10 to 11 cents.

The Postal Service has proposed a 142-per-cent jump in second-class rates over a fiveyear period and a 33-per-cent hike in third-class rates, onefifth to take effect this spring.

The postal reorganization legislation passed by Congress last year provides rate increases be fixed by a five-member independent rate commission, at the suggestion of the board of governors.

Sentence for Payroll Tax Evasions

ST. LOUIS — Edward F. Bierschwal, a Cape Girardeau meat market operator, was sentenced in April, by United States District Judge James H. Meredith to six months imprisonment on each of four counts, to run concurrently.

A four-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury Feb. 12, charged Bierschwal with willful failure to file payroll tax returns for the first, second, third and fourth quarters of 1968. Taxes for these quarters amounted to $5,551.95.

Judge Meridity allowed Bierschwal to remain at liberty on his present bond until May 17, at which time he will surrender to the U.S. marshal to begin serving his sentence.

Bierschwal changed his plea from innocent to guilty April 5, to the four counts.

The case was investigated by agents of the intelligence and audit divisions of the internal revenue service and presented by Robert B. Schneider, assistant to U.S. Attorney Daniel Bartlett, Jr.

Rosenblum arrivedApril 28, the first foreign newspman in after the insurgency erupted, and made a number of trips outside Colombo to see militaryoperations. An American citizen based in Sigapore and Malaysia, he is the first newsman expelled from Ceylon during the crisis.

Safeway Adopts Equal Pay for Equal Experience

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)–Safeway Stores, Inc., says its male and female clerks will start getting equal pay for equal experience May 2–but not because of pending court action in Oregon.

A union spokesman said the policy change will mean a pay increase of as much as 40 per cent for some women clerks.

Safeway President W. S. Mitchell said the decision to boost the pay scale of female employes was based on a year-long study begun before the Oregon suit was filed.

Safeway, which operates in 28 states from coast to coast, had no estimate of how many employes in its 1,963 stores would be affected by the increase.

A union spokesman said the decision would put the scale for both men and women at about $2.80 per hour.

Cepeda Swings Hot Bat; Gentry Records 1-Hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hitting against Woody Fryman has been no picnic for Orlando Cepeda.

But Sunday it was a feast.

The Atlanta first baseman fed on his long-time nemesis for five hits, including the game winning home run in the 10th inning that carried the Braves past the Phillies 5-4.

"I never hit him so good," said Cepeda. "But it was one of those days where everything falls in and nobody gets you out."

The "nobody' in this case was Fryman, who said he threw the gopher pitch just about where he wanted.

"We tried to jam him,' said Fryman, "it was off the plate good. But he just got in front of it.'

It was just about where Cepeda wanted it, too: "An inside fast ball—about belt high.'

The bundle of hits made it a whale of a three-game series at Veterans Stadium for Cepeda, who has been known to voice his displeasure while playing in Philadelphia.

Cepeda, who once said he didn't like hitting at the Phillies' old park, Connie Mack Stadium, because official scorers were not fair to him, hit a triple in Friday night's opener and a single and home run Saturday.

The San Francisco Giants continued to bomb the Chicago Cubs, taking a doubleheader 5-1 and 8-1 to complete a sweep of their four-game series. In other National League games, the Montreal Expos topped off a three-game sweep of Cincinnati's defending champions with a 3-2, 5-3 double triumph; Houston tripped Los Angeles 86, St. Louis turned back San Diego 4-2 and the New York Mets and Pittsburgh Pirates split a pair. New York won the first 5-2 and Pittsburgh, the second, 2-1.

In the American League, Boston beat Detroit 1-0; Baltimore crushed the New York Yankees 11-6; California clipped Minnesota 5-4; Oakland tripped the Chicago White Sox 11-2 and 6-1; Washington defeated Cleveland 4-0 in the opener of a twin bill and Cleveland took the second, 1-0 and Kansas City and Milwaukee split their doubleheader—Kansas City winning the first, 2-1 and Milwaukee the nightcap, 3-2 in 13 innings.

After an early productive day of four hits in four at-bats and two runs knocked in, Cepeda wasn't thinking of hitting a home run in the 10th.

"Oh, no,' said the broadshouldered slugger, "I just tried to get my bat on the ball."

Cepeda's fourth hit, a runscoring single in the seventh inning, gave the Braves a 4-3 lead. But the Phillies tied it in the ninth on Terry Harmon's bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

Pinch-hitter Frank Johnson struck a three-run double and Bobby Bonds delivered a tworun homer in the first game and rookie catcher Fran Healy drove in four runs with a homer and single in the second in the San Francisco sweep.

The Cubs led 1-0 in the opener when the Giants mounted their game-winning rally in the fourth inning against Milt Pappas. In the first inning of the second game, the Giants rocked rookie Bill Bonham for four runs, including Healy's two-run single. Healy then crashed a two-run homer in the fourth.

Clyde Mashore's basesloaded, pinch-hit single in the seventh inning knocked in two runs in the first game for Montreal, then Rusty Staub gave the Expos their second-game victory with a two-run homer and run-producing double.

Joe Morgan slammed a three-run homer and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly for Houston. The Astros backed winning hurler Jack Billingham with a 15-hit attack, which included a triple by Roger Metzger and doubles by Denis Menke, Bob Watson and Doug Rader.

Morgan's homer in the fifth inning triggered a five-run uprising which chased Dodger starter Claude Osteen.

Pinch-hitter Leron Lee's tie breaking double keyed a tworun rally in the ninth for St. Louis, extending San Diego's losing streak to five games. Ted Sizemore, who walked and took second on a wild pitch, scored on Lee's double to left. Matty Alou then singled home lee for the insurance run.

Gary gentry pitched a onehitter—Roberto Clemente's sixth-inning triple—and Cleon Jones knocked in three runs in New York's opening game success. Willie Stargell delivered a long single to left in the eighth inning of the nightcap to score Richie Hebner with Pittsburgh's winning run in the second game.

FISH, big and small, continue to flop into the Wal-Mart sporting goods department and enter the store's second annual fishing contest. Paul and Terry Holifield entered their two-pound, two-and-a-half ounce carp caught on a makeshift hook. The hook was a Christmas tree hanger. They used bread as bait.

Cards Sweep Padre Series

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals pulled out a 4-2 decision with a two-run rally in the ninth over the Padres in San Diego, and the Kansas City Royals split a pair with the Brewers in Milwaukee Sunday.

Kansas City won the first game 2-1 on Paul Schaal's homer in the ninth, and a bases-loaded single by Tommy Harper of the Brewers broke up a second-game deadlock in the 13th inning, 3-2.

Pinch-hitter Leron Lee keyed the clinching rally by the Cards in the ninth with a double that scored the go-ahead run, and Matty Alou singled home the insurance tally. The Padres tied it 2-2 in the eighth on a walk and Clarence Gaston's double.

Joe Torre opened the seventh with a vicious single that caromed off the left knee of Clay Kirby, benching the Padres starter. Torre took second on a passed ball, then put the Cards ahead 2-1 on Ted Sizemore's single.

The Royals tied the first game in the fifth when Fred Patek singled, stole second and scored on Joe Keough's single.

Milwaukee went ahead twice in the nightcap on homers by Bill Voss and Mike Hegan. Kansas City tied the score each time, once in the fourth on a homer by Amos Otis, and again in the seventh on singles by Cookie Rojas and Lou Piniella, an error and a sacrifice fly.

Harper's single off Ted Abernathy with the bases loaded in the 13th scored Ted Savage, one of three walks.

Jim Rooker, 0-2, is scheduled to start for Kansas City at Minnesota today. Jim Kaat, 1-0, is the Twins starter.

St. Louis will pitch Jerry Reuss, 1-1, at San Francisco tonight against Frank Reberger, 1-0.

Blankenship Checks Lilbourn On 3-Hits

by GEORGE SMITH

LILBOURN---Coach N.P. McDaniel's Bulldog baseballers played errorless ball Friday afternoon and whipped the Panthers, 10-0.

The game was called after five innings due to the 10-run, five-inning rule.

Bob Blankenship limited the Panthers to three hits in the five innings he pitched evening his record at 1-1 for the season.

The Bulldogs jumped out in front in the first inning on a two-run homer by third baseman Keith Craig and that turned out to be all they needed to post their fourth win of the year against two losses. Craig ended his day's work with 2 for 2 at the plate.

Don Miller also had two hits in the 10-hit barrage by Sikeston.

Grant Dambach was the losing pitcher for Lilbourn but collected two of the Panthers three hits.

Sikeston pushed five more runs across the plate in the second and three more in the fifth.

The Bulldogs now have a 4-2 record for the season and are tied with Jackson and Cape Central for first place in the SEMO conference with a 3-1 record.

Sikeston's next game will be a conference affair with Notre Dame at Cape Girardeau Tuesday afternoon.

Record Set

MOSCOW (AP)–Soviet weightlifter Vasily Alexayev set a world record in the super heavyweight division Sunday with a jerk of 508 pounds, Tass reported today.

The Soviet news agency said Alexeyev bettered his own previous record by 1.1 pounds.

THE LITTLE RIVER DRAINAGE DISTRICT has been charged in Cape Girardeau County with killing more than 25,000 fish. The Kill apparently caused by spraying ditches with a herbicide, using oil as a carrier. A kill estimated at 40,000 was reported along a five and a half mile strip of drainage ditch in New Madrid County between Parma and Risco.

Fish Kills Continue

COLUMBIA--There were 29 fish kills in Missouri in 1970. That's the official Department of Conservation box score. More than 650,000 fish killed, 113 miles of stream and 16 acres of ponds affected.

Now, 1971 is chipping in with its ante. One of two new kills is 40,000 on five and a half miles of a drainage ditch in New Madrid County between Parma and Risco.

The kill apparently caused by spraying four miles of the ditch with a herbicide, using oil as a carrier.

Fish killed, included bass, bluegills, crappie, pickerel and other species.

At the same time 10 miles of drainage ditch in Cape Girardeau and Stoddard Counties were sprayed. An estimated 25,000 fish died.

"That really is a conservative estimate," says Frank Ryck, water quality biologist for the Department of Conservation. "They'd just finished spraying about 8-10 miles of ditch and fish were just starting to die."

The causes from the 1970 fish kills in Missouri read like a drab catalog of Mankind's pollution problems: "sewage... pesticides...acid coal drainage...feedlot...industrial waste...sulphuric acid...low dissolved oxygen...herbicide...oil...unknown..."

Biggest kill in 1970 was the well-publicized Crooked Creek incident in Lincoln County where dumping of pesticides resulted in 349,000 dead fish.

Other big fish kills included 85,000 in Blackberry Creek in Jasper County from drainage from a coal pile; 62,000 in Cedar Creek on the Boone-Callaway Counties line from acid drainage from an old coal field; 50,000 in River des Peres in St. Louis County from sewage; and 45,000 in Tebo Creek in Henry County from coal field drainage.

Some 20,000 fish died below Stockton Dam on Sac River because of low oxygen water going through the dam. A similar situation happened below Table Rock Dam in Lake Taneycomo last autumn.

No dead trout were found in Taneycomo, but dead trout tend not to float as readily as other fish. Fishing success plunged to near zero during the low oxygen crisis in Taneycomo. Growth rates also dropped dramatically.

Big Red Schedule NY Jets

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals will launch their 1971 National Football League season with three consecutive home games.

The Washington Redskins will visit Bush Stadium in the Sept. 19 season opener.

Other home games: Oct. 24, San Francisco; Nov. 7, Dallas; Nov. 21, Philadelphia; Dec. 5, Green Bay.

Turkey Season Begins Thursday

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's 12th wild turkey season in modern times opens Thursday morning at 5 a.m. It will last for 10 half days, until noon May 2.

The season is three days longer than last year and may draw some complaint from conservationists. But Dunbar Robb, chief of the game section in the Conservation Department, said he thought Missouri's growing wild turkey flocks can stand the added pressure.

The season will be open this year in 44 counties with three counties — Benton, Maries and Oregon — added this year.

Robb said if the peak of the gobbling occurs during the 10day period hunters should have a better than average season. The past two seasons, with the weather staying cool, did not produce the best hunting.

Still the record was achieved last year with 1,607 legal gobblers taken by a total of 10,073 hunters. The previous record kill was in 1968 when 1,270 male wild turkeys were bagged.

Robb said he hoped the continuing animosity between sportsmen and Ozarks landowners will not have a bad effect on this spring's hunt.

The rift has been widening for four years as some spotsmen tried to get a scenic rivers bill enacted to protect stretches of some of the more bautiful streams.

Landowners protested that such legislation would take at least partial control of their land without any renumeration. Thousands of acres of land have been posted by the landowners against any hunting or fishing.

But Robb said he believed the turkey hunters who might want to hunt those areas have been sympathetic to the landowners' stand and so will be welcomed.

Thousands of acres in the Clark and Mark Twain National Forest will be open to hunters, as well.

A farmer hunting on his own land does not need the special $7.80 turkey permit but all other hunters need the permit as well as a Missouri hunting license.

Any turkey bagged must be checked with a conservation department agent by 3 p.m. of the day it is bagged in the same county or an adjacent county.

These are the open counties this year:

Adair, Barry, Benton, Bollinger, Butler, Callaway, Camden, Carter, Cedar, Crawford, Dent, Douglas, Frankling, Gasconade, Hickory, Howell, Iron, Jefferson Madison, Maries, McDonald, Miller, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, New Madrid, Oregon, Osage, Ozark, Perry, Phelps, Pulaski, Reynolds, Shannon, St. Clair, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, Stone, Sullivan, Taney, Texas, Warren, Washington and Wayne.

Last year Ste. Genevieve County was the leading turkey producer with 155 birds bagged. Texas was second with 112 and Iron third with 102.

Turkey Hunters Honor

JEFFERSON CITY--Successful Missouri turkey hunters during the April 22-May 2 season can get recognition in addition to the backslapping of their friends.

Field and Stream Magazine is offering a Wild Turkey Honor Badge for those hunters who bag a turkey of 16 pounds or more--which would include hundreds of Missourians.

Figures show that the average adult gobbler bagged in Missouri weighs 21 pounds, while a juvenile will weight about 14-15 pounds.

Address inquiries to: Honor Badges, Field and Stream, 383 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Lovelace Promoted

ST. LOUIS (AP)--Bob Harlan has resigned as public relations director of the St. Louis baseball Cardinals to become assistant general manager of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, the Cardinals announced.

Harlan will be replaced by Jerry Lovelace, who has been director of group sales for the past two seasons.

Harlan's resignation is effective May 15 and he will assume his new post as assistant to former Missouri football coach Dan Devine June 1.

Harlan has been Cardinal public relations director for the past three years.

Lovelace, 29, was an assistant in the public relations office for three years before taking the sales position.

"We are sorry to lose Bob Harlan," Redbird General Manager Bing Devine said. "But we wish him success in what will be a more challenging position with our good friend, Dan Devine.

"I am sure Jerry Lovelace's background and experience qualify him well for his new responsibilities," Devine said.

Lovelace is a 1963 graduate of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau.

Horse Show Set May 9

Don't laugh! In many areas of the country it's a popular way to spend a day. This is the time of the year that the horse show season is starting full swing. Kids brush-up their backyard ponies - and horsemen, who have grown fat and lazy during the cold months, have begun tuning-up their equally fat and lazy horses for the season.

A new big-show entry in the area, and one that is due to become an early favorite, is the SEMO Kiwanis Horse Show at the Arena in Cape Girardeau. The Cape Girardeau Kiwanians, working with the Southeast Missouri Charity Horse Show Association, will stage a first class show on May 9, with trophies, ribbons and money in the offing, and there will be classes for most types of horses.

The afternoon show, scheduled to start at 1 p.m., will have 13 classes, including two for ponies, four for Walking Horses, Two for Saddle horses, three pleasure classes - English, western and country - and two gymkhana events.

Helms Says CIA Role Vital to World Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency told the nation's editors Wednesday that the CIA's role is as vital to the keeping of world peace as it is to provide information vital to the national defense.

In his first public speech as head of the CIA, Helms told the annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors that "a number of wellplaced and courageous Russians" had provided information on Soviet missile systems which, along with U-2 photography, was of great help to the United States at the time of the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

He also said that, without an effective intelligence system, a U.S. agreement with Russia to limit nuclear armaments would be "unthinkable."

U.S. intelligence, he said, will have "a major and vital role" in any strategic arms limitations agreement.

Helms said the CIA has no police, subpoena, or law enforcement powers, or any domestic security functions.

He said he hoped by his accounting of CIA aims and functions to dispel criticism that his agency is an invisible government, engaged in provocative covert activities in conflict with the ideals of a free society—and other assertions, Helms said, which are "either vicious or just plain silly."

Helms said the CIA, in addition to such obvious responsibilities as measuring the thermonuclear threat to U.S. security, the current intentions of the Soviet, and the capabilities of Communist China to produce an intercontinental ballistic missile, must also equip the United States as a world power to deal with a vast variety of smaller conflicts and controversies around the globe.

"I would like to stress that accurate intelligence is equally essential to the planning and implementation of actions to forestall conflict," Helms said.

CIA efforts to gain foreign intelligence in this country have generated strong criticism, Helms said. But the CIA, he said, intends to continue interviewing private U.S. citizens who may have acquired useful foreign information while traveling abroad, and to continue trying to hire competent young graduate students for its staff.

First Britain to China Call in 22 Years Completed

LONDON (AP) — The first telephone call from Britain to China in 22 years got through today but it took 3½ hours from the time the Chinese opened the circuit.

A British Broadcasting Corp. journalist, William Hardcastle, placed a three-minute call to George Barrass, a second secretary at the British mission in Peking. Reception was nearly perfect.

The Post Office—which runs Britain's telephones—tinkered with radio transmission equipment badly affected by atmospherics.

The move, coming shortly after Peking raised the bamboo curtain to admit American, British and Canadian table tennis teams to China, was seen as another sign that Mao's Communists want to improve relations with the capitalist West.

Telephone service between the United States and Peking reopened Monday night.

A PLAGUE OF APPRECIATION for work in mental health is presented to the Rev. Marshall Dar, pastor of the First Baptist church in Dexter, by Mrs. Charles Petty, Essex, president of Tri-County Mental Health Association.

Church Aids Mental Health

DEXTER— The Tri-County Mental Health Association, which serves Mississippi, Scott and Stoddard counties , showed its appreciation to the First Baptist church for sponsoring a traveling mental health clinic monthly.

Mrs. Charles Petty, Essex, president of the organization, gave a plague to Rev. Marshall Dark , pastor, who accepted it on behalf of the congregation.

The plaque has on it the symbol of the mental health bell. Such a bell was cast in 1953 for the National Association for Mental Health from the chains, handcuffs and other metal restraints formerly used to bind mental patients.

MISSOURI LEGISLATORS REBELLING AGAINST FEDERAL WELFARE PROGRAMS

JEFFERSON CITY — The day may soon come when the Missouri legislature will say "no" to major federal welfare programs.

It has already come in a small way in the Senate. Last month, Senators refused to enact a law to bring the state into compliance with federal home nursing care standards for Medicaid recipients.

The growing rebellion has at least two main sources.

First, many lawmakers believe participation in costly federal-state welfare packages is helping to bankrupt the state. Missouri's welfare costs have nearly double in the last five years. Much of the increase can be traced to matching fund programs, initiated at the federal level.

But the issue which seems to be stirring more lawmakers toward open rebellion is one of state independence. A long with federal money come regulations, which often only blow up the already inflated welfare burden.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare already has announced two states will not receive federal welfare funds unless they get into line.

By turning down a $374,000 per year program last month, the Senate may have placed Missouri in the same position. The state will receive an estimated $195 million in federal welfare funds next year, to go along with almost $119 million of its own, if the legislature approves the recommendations of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Sen. J. F. Patterson (D-Caruthersville, Senate president pro tem, has urged his colleagues to stop submitting to what he terms the "demands of the Department of Wealth, Education and Hellfire."

Even Sen. William Cason, (D-Clinton), a long-time welfare advocate, is becoming more cautious. He admits that the time may come, perhaps even this year, that Missouri lawmakers will have to stand up to federal officials so the state can meet its commitments in education, health and other vital programs.

Sen. Noel Cox (R-Ozark) said he had never voted against a welfare measure until last month. But he said when federal standards give welfare recipients more benefits than middle income families can afford, "it is time to say no."

Another major complaint is that too often the state starts a federally matched program, only to find that in a few years the federal money is cut down or wiped out, leaving the state holding the bag for the entire program.

An example is the school lunch program, once funded entirely by federal money. This year, the state is being asked to help finance the program. Although state support was written into the federal law which established the program, few legislators knew about it when they accepted the federal money.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham (D-Columbia) has asked for a full-scale investigation of welfare laws and possible welfare fraud in Missouri, a move which has drawn little response.

Few legislators have questioned the administration of State Welfare director Proctor Carter, who has been hailed on the Senate floor as "one of the best welfare administrators in the country."

The legislature has given Carter immense powers. He can cut off or cut back any program when funds run low. Because of this, the state has never spent more than it appropriated for welfare. In other states, directors have gone millions beyond their budgets and put their states in perilous financial condition.

Missouri is also one of few states whose welfare recipients are, almost without exception, unable to work. Of the 300,000 Missourians receiving assistance, most are dependent children, blind, totally and permanently disabled or unable to work for other medical reasons.

But the dissatisfaction with the federal welfare situation has reached the point where senators have threatened to use their congressional redistricting power to get Missouri congressmen to act.

There has been an implied and expressed threat that the state simply will not go along with federal regulations, if it means putting the remaining state programs in jeopardy.

Such action would be extremely risky, says Paul Williams, legal aide to the governor. In almost 35 years, not one state welfare program has been denied federal funds, he says. "But one of these days, the boys in Washington are going to call our bluff. And then we'll be in real trouble.

A complete federal takeover of welfare funding would satisfy most of the legislative leaders. Senate majority leader Cason says, "If the federal government can tell us how to run our programs and who to hire, why shouldn't it pay the bill?" That solution has the backing of Hearnes and a growing number of lawmakers in Jefferson City.

It also appears to have major support in Washington,although key committee leaders are expected to block it this year.

Good Water Costlier in San Angelo Than Gasoline

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Mother Nature has played some cruel jokes on this West Texas city.

It is only perversely funny to some when a dry lakebed burns, the city runs a pipeline to a dry reservoir, and a gallon of good water costs more than a gallon of gasoline.

There were few chuckles here when the Texas Legislature, in a lighter moment, toyed with legislation authorizing the city to build a pipeline to the moon.

And only a handful of people stampeded out to purchase bumper stickers proclaiming the city of 64,000 the "Pipeline Capital of Texas."

The community pays $73,000 annually for 3,000 acre-feet of water it isn't getting from one reservoir, and $240,000 yearly for a pipeline it isn't using.

According to unofficial estimates, the city pays between $675,000 and $800,000 annually in water supply retirement debts on four lakes.

Only the smallest of the four, Lake Nasworthy, contains an appreciable amount of moisture.

Citizens distressed with the quality of water have turned, in vast numbers, to bottled water for drinking and cooking.

Mystic-Ozarka reports that bottled water sales have increased 85 per cent since last October. At $1.90 a five-gallon container, that's 38 cents a gallon.

Since last October, less than half an inch of rain has fallen. This, coupled with an absence of heavy rains in recent years, dried up one lake and depleted the water supply in others. The dry lake bed burned.

To circumvent this drought and potential future dry spells, the city has contracted for underground sources.

It intends to spend $8 million to $10 million to acquire and funnel ground water 55 miles to San Angelo.

More than 3,000 wells have been dug within the city since January 1970.
